LYALISTS REPULSE
MADRID ATTACK

Urgent Bombardment
Madrid Is Resumed and Numerous Shells Fall to Downtown Area.

MADRID, April 18.—(AP)—The Spanish government today reported success for its armies as heavy fighting continued on the widely rated fronts of Teruel, 150 miles east of the capital, and Cordoba province, an almost equal distance to the south.
The government is attacking vigorously in an effort to reduce the Teruel salient the insurgent lines, the government concentrated large forces of infantry, artillery, tanks and aircraft in the vicinity of Celadas, 100 miles northwest of Teruel.
The Teruel bulge is the result of the insurgents' intermittent effort to break through to the sea between Barcelona and Valencia thereby separating those centers of government power.
The government can take Cel-adas and drive from there a few miles further southward to the way linking Teruel and Zazara, the insurgents in the salient would be cut off from their Government aircraft heavily bombarded enemy positions throughout the Teruel area.
Action around Madrid centered
the attempt to keep the Insurgarrison of 3,000 in Univer-City, on the capital's western side, bottled up. All efforts of insurgents in the nearby Casa Campo to pass food across the Zaragoza river to the besieged city failed.
Cordoba province the Insur-
s attacked vigorously in an attempt to drive government forces from the mountain positions have seized near the vital way running northwest from Cordoba city, which forms the line of communications for General Francisco Franco's armies at region.
The insurgent artillery bombardment of Madrid was resumed
y, and numerous shells fell in downtown area.

ROYALIST PLANES
SHOT TO EARTH
ARAGON, Spain, April 18.—
Seven of a squadron of 30 government planes were sent to earth in a spectacular incidents said today.
A crack squadron of 15 Insur-
giant planes met the government planes in the bigger air battle along Aragon front for months.
The ground troops saw a lone pilot shoot down two government planes in a prelude the battle of the 45 planes.

Rescue Squad Revives Prisoner for Rites

CHICAGO, April 18.—(AP)—Mr.
Mrs. Clyde Binkley were honored today after their wedding date with a minister almost died out to be one with an unlucky Binkley.
Binkley, 26, a Nashville, Tenn., taxi driver, was found unconscious last night from lack of oxygen, struck by a gas heater, at the home of his bride-to-be, Ethel Heston, 19.
Twenty minutes later he was revived by a fire department rescue team and the couple hastened to home of the minister one hour later.

Holdup-Slayer of Sjoblom, Hoyt Summers, Flees Gang

Killer, Two Other Prisoners Saw Way Out of Dougherty Prison.

HOYT SUMMERS.

Hoyt Summers, Kirkwood youth sentenced to life imprisonment for the holdup-murder here of Max Sjoblom, Iowa salesman, escaped yesterday with two other prisoners from the Dougherty county chain gang at Albany, Ga.
The convicts sawed their way out of a steel cage, and took an automobile parked at a house in Albany.

Two Previous Escapes.
Summers' companions were reported as Lovett Martin, serving a life term for murder in Pierce county, and Jack Watts, a burglary convict.

Summers, who was sentenced October 13, 1934, for the murder of the Davenport, Iowa, auto-parts salesman, has escaped twice previously since he was sentenced, both times on Saturday nights.

Deputy Sheriff L. B. Herring also said the other two men have escape records.

Sjoblom was slain September 22, 1934, at Spring and Marietta streets. During the trial, Solicitor General John A. Boykin, leading the attack for the prosecution, dwelled at length on testimony which revealed portions of torn money found on the slain man after the robbery fitted other pieces in Summers' pockets at the time of his arrest.

Search for Body.
The body of Sjoblom, employed by the Bear Manufacturing Company, with headquarters at Rock

Island, Ill., was found after a 12-hour search when police were led to a lonely, wooded spot off Riverdale road, in Clayton county, by Robert Riley, 20, of an Eleanor street address.

Riley confessed, following his arrest, which came about when a taxicab driver reported picking up a man with blood on his clothes, and implicated Summers. Riley said he and Summers attempted to hold up Sjoblom when the sales-

SPANISH BLOCKADE TO START TONIGHT

Warships of Four Nations Receive Instructions to Isolate Iberian Conflict.

LONDON, April 18.—(AP)— Commanders of warships of four nations received instructions tonight for taking up a patrol of the Spanish coast tomorrow at midnight, the time set for inaugurating an international plan to isolate the civil war.

Land observers also will take up their posts at that hour, bringing to a climax months of "handoff Spain" negotiations.

About 60 warships from the navies of Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy will begin a check of the entire coast line of Spain. The land observers, to be stationed at the French, Portuguese and Gibraltar Spanish borders, will total about 500.

British Vice Admiral Blake, with the battle cruiser Hood, spent the night at La Rochelle, France, after talking with Sir Henry Chilton, British ambassador to Spain, at Hendaye. Tomorrow, the Hood and the cruiser Shropshire will participate in a patrol of the Basque coast.

Rear Admiral Boehm, commanding the German naval forces in Spanish waters, was at Algiers waiting to start his nation's role in the sea patrol. French ships hovered off Spanish Morocco, and Ibiza and Majorca in the Balearic islands. Italian ships cruised off eastern Spain.

"Neither land nor sea observers will be authorized to halt men or goods."

VANDENBERG ASKS JOBLESS CENSUS

Republican Contends That Employment Now Far
Surpasses That of 1929.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—(AP)
Senator Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, asserted today that the number of jobless "is perhaps being overestimated by as much as 5,000,000."

He urged "an accurate, authentic, current census of the unemployed."

Vandenberg estimated in a statement that only 2,975,000 persons are now out of jobs, adding that his calculations "would seem to indicate vastly less unemployment than is constantly asserted by the Labor Department."

His analysis was promptly challenged by Dr. Isador Lubin, labor statistics commissioner, who asserted the Labor Department "has never made any estimate whatever of unemployment."

"If Senator Vandenberg's calculations were correct," he said,
"more people would be at work in the United States than there were employed at the peak of the 1929 boom."

Senator Vandenberg conceded that his estimate "would represent the greatest number of persons employed in our history," but said it would mean an increase of only 2,167,000 over the 1929 maximum.
Lubin explained the department made no effort to calculate the number of jobless, but that it estimated 33,500,000 persons were holding jobs in February. Vandenberg put the figure at 38,145,- 000.

DANGER IS KILLED BY HAMMER BLOW IN REHEARSAL HALL

Unconscious Broadway
Entertainer Discovered

Cracked Open; Death of Model Is Recalled.

AUTHORITIES SEEK POSSIBLE MOTIVE

Police Believe Slayer Hid in Waiting, Struck Once
Sought for Questioning.

NEW YORK, April 18.—(UP)— Beautiful Julia Nussenbaum, talented young musician and dancer, was beaten to death with a claw-hammer today in a rehearsal hall of a theatrical building in the Times Square district.

Police tonight sought an unidentified man who entered the almost deserted building 15 minutes before Miss Nussenbaum died, and who left shortly after she arrived.

The dark-haired, 25-year-old entertainer who danced under the stage name of Tania Lebova, was found face down under a window draped, her skull split by a single blow of the hammer, which lay beside her.

She died six hours later in a hospital.

Police of 2 states in Hunt.
Tonight police of two states sought to question persons who had known the dancer, in an effort to unravel possible motives for her death, which in many respects parallels the murder of Ronnie Gedeon, exotic Broadway model who was strangled last month in her mid-town apartment.

The girl's father, Nathan Nussenbaum, a Bridgeport, Conn., window cleaner, hurried here to give police what information he could.

Detectives said one of those they wanted to question was Mischa Ross, a New York booking agent who was formerly engaged to Miss Nussenbaum. According to information from Bridgeport, the pair broke off the engagement a month ago.

The girl was found by Moyra Engels, a dancer who had hired the rehearsal room for an afternoon hour. One foot was protruding from the bottom of gray window drapes. Dark ringlets of blood-soaked hair was plastered to her face.

She was unconscious until she died.

Killer Lays in Wait.
Police believe the girl's killer lay in wait for her, struck one blow with the hammer and left her dying. The killing occurred

HEARING ON COURT ENTERS LAST LAP

Opponents of Reform Will Be Given Seven of the Ten Remaining Days.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—(AP)
The senate judiciary committee will head into the final 10 days of morrow of its public hearings on President Roosevelt's court reorganization bill.

Opposition witnesses have been allotted another week to conclude their arguments. If they desire it, proponents will then be given three days of rebuttal time. The committee agreed Saturday to make April 28 the closing deadline.

The supreme court itself will not convene again for announcement of decisions until a week from Monday.

Chairman Ashurst, Democrat,
Arizona, a supporter of the President's plan, said there was some doubt the proponents would use the three days allotted to them, despite a preponderance of opposition testimony taken to date.
Advocates of the bill used but two of the six weeks the hearings have been in progress.

Opening of the major league baseball season in Washington will cut into tomorrow's hearing, confirming testimony to a single witness. Alan Linburg, New York attorney, will testify.

George Berry, president of Labor's Non-Partisan League, antagonist of the bill, will testify.

MONEY PROMISED OSHAWA STRIKERS

UAW Pledges Unlimited Financial Aid to Prevent Their Quitting CIO.

OSHAWA, Ont., April 18.—
(UP)—Promise of unlimited financial aid from United States units of the United Automobile Workers of America tonight bolstered the spirits of striking employees of the Oshawa plant of General Motors of Canada, Ltd., at a time when it appeared that the local strikers might cut away from the CIO for lack of support from across the border.

Hugh Thompson, Canadian organizer for John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization, promised the 3,700 strikers through their leaders that ample funds would be available to support them until the company grants union recognition.

The definite assurance of funds apparently served to bring disgruntled strikers back into the fold. It had been reported that some of the local leaders were insisting that Homer Martin, U. S. head, call a strike of all units in the United States. The pledge of financial aid apparently was a compromise, as Martin is understood to have advised the strike leaders it would be unwise to call out General Motors workers in the United States.

Plans to carry on the strike all summer if necessary were mapped out as three committees were appointed to look after the workers.

Thompson promised all strikers and their families would be taken care of until recognition of the CIO is granted in Canada.

Earlier today, before the question of United States aid was settled, a spokesman for the strikers said the Canadian workers were about ready to settle their own controversy and "get along without the union."

Patriarch, 101, Looks on Life, Finds It Good

MORGANTON, Ga., April 18.—
George Washington Hampton, 101, celebrated his 101st birthday yesterday and although his house was crowded with friends and packed with relatives from many parts of Georgia, his benign influence and his magnetic personality dominated the household over which he has presided for scores of years.

Hampton has literally witnessed a century of progress, but in reviewing the march of events he is doubtful that the world is even now a better place in which to live. He has somewhat the view of a skeptic, and although he is practically blind and his blue eyes no longer appraise the march of events, he is alive in every sense of the word.

Remains Active.
Despite his age, he is surprisingly active, and seems being made "anything of," because as he bluntly puts it, "I'm no invalid."

His is a whimsical outlook on life. He lives much in the past, but he gleams comfort from his radio "except when they put on a boop de boop program and related how the 'Yankees' won."
He recalls vividly the terrifying scenes of the War Between the States, which Margaret Mitchell records so realistically in "Gone With the Wind." He fought for the "cause" for three years, and today
related how the "Yankees" won.
"General Bob Lee just couldn't win while I was in a prison camp in Illinois and not in the fight,"
he said yesterday with a broad smile. His is a refreshing humor.
He sees everything from his hum-

FEDERATION GROUP ARRIVES IN CAPITAL

3 Atlantans to Confer Today With Green and Executive Council of AFL.

The committee of three from the Atlanta Federation of Trades arrived yesterday in Washington to confer with William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

They will meet today with the executive council of the American Federation of Labor when Green's orders for expulsion of CIO unions from the city federation and the Georgia Federation of Labor will be discussed.

The committee, composed of Charles B. Gramling, Dewey L.
Johnson and George F. Haney, went to Washington in the hope of ironing out difference between Green and the city group over CIO representation in the local federation.

Mark Time Here.
J. A. (Gus) Harper, president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades, said last night he had not heard from the committee since they left here Saturday, and that there were no new developments over the week end in the labor situation.

Meanwhile, labor ranks anticipated eagerly opening here Wednesday of the annual convention of the Georgia Federation of Labor, at which time the fate of A.
Steve Nance as president will be decided.

Nance has quietly directed preparations for the convention, and for his battle to retain leadership of the state body, through friends in city central bodies and smaller units throughout Georgia.

Nance incurred disfavor with Green through his alleged activities in organizing and otherwise identifying himself with unions suspended by the American Fed-

PERKIN'S SESSION OPENS TOMORROW

Secretary Hopes to Set Up Machinery to End Disputes Which Do Not Come Under U. S. Law.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—(AP)
Labor sources said tonight an American Federation of Labor executive council meeting tomorrow will discuss final expulsion of "rebel" unions now aligned with John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization.

These sources said the council might fix a time and place for a special convention of the federation to ratify a proposal to follow up last September's suspension of the Lewis unions.

AFL officials were noncommittal but denied the meeting had been called for Nashville, Tenn., as reported last night at Tulsa by G. Ed Warren, Oklahoma federation president. Frank Morrison, AFL secretary, said the matter
"might be conceivably discussed" at the council's three-day meeting.

CIO unions' use of the sit-down strike technique is expected to figure in the council's considerations.
The council's agenda calls for discussion of plans for an intensive membership drive in the wake of supreme court decisions upholding the Wagner labor act and rights of labor to demand recognition for unions and collective bargaining with employers.

The labor questions also will receive the attention of a labor-management conference on Tuesday, called by Secretary Perkins.
She said she hoped the discussions would develop a national program for settlement of labor disputes which might not come under the Wagner act.

From Detroit today came word
the United Automobile Workers would discuss union plans for organizing Ford Motor Company employees here tomorrow. Some reports said the meeting was scheduled in Washington because Lewis wanted to keep in close touch with the union's organizational program.

Green decided 10 days ago to summon his council into special session. His summons came coincidentally with announcement by one of his chief aides, John E.
Frey, that his life had been threatened in the drive to organize Texas oil field workers.

18-STORY GAS TANK ORDERED BY FORD

DETROIT, April 18.—(AP)—Union plans for organizing Ford Motor Company employees, informed sources said tonight, will come before the high command of the United Automobile Workers at Washington tomorrow.

The union's drive for Ford members was reported to be a leading item on the agenda of a special executive board meeting in the offices of John L. Lewis, chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization.

As the union prepared to chart its course, another expansion of production equipment was announced by the Ford company.

An official disclosed Henry Ford, who recently said he would "demonstrate some real competition in the automobile business."

Dynamite Blast Kills Mother, 7 Children

MUSKEGO, Wis., April 18.—
(UP)—A mother and seven of her children were killed tonight when their farm home near here was destroyed by an explosion of dynamite stored in the basement.
Another child was injured critically.

A deputy sheriff said 50 pounds of the explosive, for use in blasting tree stumps, was transferred from a barn to the basement yesterday. He said he had not learned how the explosion occurred.

The dead: Mrs. Mary Waszak, 54; John Jr., 18; Lottie, 15; Frank,
8; Joseph, 3, and Raymond, 3. Two other children, both girls, who were not identified, died a short time after they were taken to the Waukegan General hospital. Another girl was in a critical condition at the hospital.

GUN-LIKE REPORTS IS DENHARDT ALIBI IN WIDOW'S DEATH

Several Assertedly Heard 2 Shots at Time She Was Killed by Pistol.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 18.—(UP)—The sound of a gun, which frightened several persons on a still night last November, will be the alibi of Brigadier General Henry H. Denhardt, 61, against the charge that he murdered his fiancée, the popular and socially prominent Mrs. Verna Garr Taylor, 40.

Commonwealth Prosecutor Kin-solving prepared tonight to break down that alibi with testimony of experts and persons who heard two gun-like reports at about the time the pretty widow died of a bullet from Denhardt's .45-caliber army revolver.

The April term of Henry county circuit court begins at New Castle tomorrow and Denhardt's trial, postponed once before because of floods, is docketed for Tuesday, when Judge Marshall is to hear a defense motion for change of venue. The motion will charge intense prejudice among prospective jurors in the village of New Castle and its vicinity.

It may take two days to dispose of the venue motion. Then, if it is denied, the trial will begin. Two reports were heard the night of Mrs. Taylor's death, near the farm of George Baker, a few miles outside LaGrange. The first was the characteristic boom of a .45, both sides agree.

About the second, which followed in a few minutes, there is vital dispute.

The defense will contend both reports were caused by Denhardt's revolver, that Mrs. Taylor fired a shot into the air to test the gun, then turned the weapon on herself.

The state will offer evidence the

'Illusion' Held View Of Natural Laws

CHICAGO, April 18.—(AP)—The Rev. Dr. Edwin McNeill Post Jr., of Raleigh, N. C., in an address before the Chicago Sunday Evening Club tonight said, "Society seems to have an amazing capacity to survive in spite of its great illusions."

"Society usually refers to them as natural laws," he said. "For 2,000 years the illusion of spontaneous generation persisted; that of the divine right of kings lasted almost as long."

"We are only beginning to wake up to the fact that the natural law of private ownership of land as a ground of economic security is an illusion."

"Pastor destroyed the first of these illusions; Cromwell, the second, and Henry George the third."

first shot killed Mrs. Taylor, and that the second report either was caused by a smaller weapon fired by Denhardt to establish his alibi, or was merely the report of an automobile backfiring.

24-YEAR-OLD DEATH LAID TO JEALOUSY

Missing Man Indicted in Logging Camp Slaying Over Girl Cook.

INEZ, Ky., April 18.—(AP)—Commonwealth's Attorney Harrington, of Paintsville, Ky., expressed today the opinion that "jealousy" over the cook at a Kentucky mountain log camp was the motive for the slaying 24 years ago of James Watterson, 60-year-old camp superintendent.

The Martin county grand jury indicted Harvey Hardin, 45, on a murder charge after determining Watterson died from a bullet wound and not a heart attack. "There is no doubt in my mind," Harrington asserted, "but that it (the killing) was jealousy over the camp cook."

The cook, he said, was Mrs. Polly Runyon, mother of Mrs. John Harless, who revived the mystery surrounding Watterson's strange death when she testified she saw Hardin, then a school teacher, shoot the college-bred superintendent as he lay asleep in a bunkhouse.

Harrington said although Mrs. Harless was "just a young girl" at the time, May 31, 1913, she was positive in her identification of Hardin as the killer, telling the grand jury "she had gone to school to him."

Hardin has not been apprehended.

DOMINICANS SEEK TREATY.
WASHINGTON, April 18.—(UP)—Taking advantage of President Roosevelt's "good neighbor" policy, the Dominican Republic has initiated negotiations toward a substitute convention for the treaty of 1924 which gave the United States control over the nation's customs collections, it was learned tonight.

Sheriff and Brother Capture Two Fleeing Gunmen

Playing a "hunch" that two big city gangsters would get lost in the maze of streets of their little town, Sheriff Homer Sylvester (extreme left), and his deputy brother, Cass, captured two fleeing gunmen, Robert Suhay and Alfred Power, at Plattsmouth, Neb. Not so lucky was Wayne W. Baker, young G-man on his first major assignment. He was fatally wounded in trying to trap the accused New York bank bandits in a Topeka, Kas., postoffice.

G-MAN SUCCUMBS TO BANDIT BULLET

Operation, Transfusions Fail as FBI Plans for Indictment of Pair.

TOPEKA, Kan., April 18.—(AP) The bullets of two New York gunmen he sought to trap two days ago claimed the life of a young federal agent just as his fellow G-men were clamping an $11,000 web of evidence about the spectacular gangsters today.

W. W. Baker, 27, the agent, died near last midnight in a hospital here of four bullet wounds he suffered in his first major assignment. An emergency operation and two blood transfusions were futile.

In near-by Kansas City, federal agents held Alfred Power and Robert Suhay, gangsters accused of an $18,000 Katonah, N. Y., bank robbery, to face what United States Attorney S. S. Alexander said would be a prompt indictment for murder.

orous side. His is a pleasing outlook although the eyes, with which he "hunted" Yankees before they outsmarted me, and, through a piece of excellent strategy, captured me just north of Atlanta and thereby won the war," no longer flash.

Recalls Mexican War.
Hampton remembers the Mexican war. He was about 10 years old then. He likes the "good old days when people were people and men were men; when their word was their bond."

"How many offspring have I?" he asked in answer to a question. "Well, let's see. I counted them up about two or three years ago." His face beamed, because he was holding the latest addition to his family on his knee and was seated at a table piled with chicken and other delicacies including a mammoth birthday cake bearing 101 candles.

Just Quit Counting.
"The last time I counted them all up, I had about 33 grandchildren, 60 great-grandchildren and 15 or 20 great-great-grandchildren. Where I got there, I just got tired and quit counting."

Malcolm Ayers, 7-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Ayers, of Cornelia, was the family pride, who insisted on eating all the birthday cake, and did eat until his apprehensive mother yanked him from his great-great-grandfather's arms.

In the twilight of his years, Hampton reviews in retrospect his busy life. He also is enjoying a well earned rest. He is "ready to go" as he expresses it.

"I'm just living on clover now," he added laughingly. "I haven't set any certain age as my goal. That would be foolish. But I'm healthy, all except a little high blood pressure. I enjoy eating. I've had my piece of birthday cake, and the others can have the rest."

He lives with his son, G. S. Hampton, here. G. S. Hampton is the only child by the second marriage which took place when the

Is Fishing Fun? Aquarium Head Has Own View

CHICAGO, April 18.—(AP)—Walter H. Chute nearly lost his life doing it but he brought back 2,400 specimens of tropical fish for the John G. Shedd Aquarium, of which he is director.

"Some people think fishing is fun," Chute said today as he rested from his 20th expedition in behalf of the lake trout aquarium. "They ought to have been along." The trip included being lost at sea in a 37-foot cruiser, drifting with both engines useless amid shoals and rocks in a black tropic night, being marooned on a barren island, and nearly sinking within sight of Bimini harbor, the expedition base in the Bahamas, about 60 miles off the Florida coast.

Chute led a party of six, but only two men accompanied him on a 120-mile side trip to Nassau that ended in near disaster and the loss of the fish they had collected, including some prize specimens.

Lost when he mistook a lighthouse for one far to the south, Chute said they were able to use only one motor when they hit a shoal. The second engine was disabled and finally they drifted onto a barren island.

The boat was leaking so badly that the crew responded to an alarm clock every two hours to bail out seepage. Finally, near the Bimini harbor and four days overdue, the cruiser struck a bar and nearly sank. Natives helped pull it free.

eration of Labor and now affiliated with the rival Committee for Industrial Organization.

Four Major Topics Up.

Although many important questions will come before the convention Wednesday, four major questions emerge as being certain to be presented.

These include the removal of Nance as president, on orders of William Green, because of the alleged CIO activities; removal of the Georgia Federation of Labor's headquarters from its present location adjoining Nance's office in the Atlanta National building; complete divorcement of the state federation of all unions recognized as affiliated with CIO and suspended by AFL, and the barring of delegates of these CIO unions from participation in the convention.

A fifth question may also come up, that of Green's order to the Atlanta Federation of Trades to expel all CIO union delegates from its councils.

elder Hampton was 70 years old. The second wife was the former Miss Tennie Dailey. She died in 1930.

Hampton's first marriage took place in 1837 with Miss Harriet Hayes as the bride. Eight children resulted from that union. Only one, however, still survives, T. B. Hampton, of Clay county, North Carolina.

"I remember when we were in prison camp when dog meat was considered a great delicacy," he said. "No, I never ate any, but that was because I didn't have a chance. It sure did smell good. There were about 6,000 in our camp and we did not get enough to eat."

In Battle of Atlanta.
"Oh, I went through the whole war without a scratch and was in the Battles of Atlanta, Missionary Ridge, Kennesaw Mountain and other engagements. I was captured near Atlanta on June 12, 1864, and stayed in prison in Illinois until June 12, 1865."

"I served under a lot of captains, but always under the command of General Breckenridge. There was a man."

Hampton was born in Buncombe county, North Carolina on April 17, 1836. He still enjoys life, but his philosophy will not permit him to "want to carry on too long."

He announces "ready" and one can tell he means just what he says.

He is highly regarded and respected by his neighbors. He is considered the nestor of this north Georgia section.

Thaw Says Reich Has Best Blondes

BERLIN, April 18.—(UP)—Germany has the best blondes and beer in the world, Harry K. Thaw said tonight.

"I wish I could see them better," he added. "The blondes, I mean."

The famous Broadway playboy, now 67 years old, has arrived in Berlin after two weeks in Paris where he consulted an eye specialist. He has been leading a quiet life here, staying out of the hot spots.

"Going to a night club when you can't see is like going for a ride on a scenic railway during an eclipse," Thaw said.

SENATOR NYE ASKS WHAT PEOPLE VOTE IN WAR ENTRANCE

Republican Contends Draft
Bill Would Swell Munition Profits.

NEWBURY PARK, N. J., April 18.—Senator Gerald P. Nye, North Dakota Republican, contended today that the Hall-Shepherd bill for fighting men and wealth in war would swell rather than curb profits of private munitions manufacturers.

As a means of keeping the United States out of future foreign Wars, Nye advocated a constitutional amendment to give the people an opportunity to vote on whether congress could declare war.

"The Hall-Shepherd bill does a fine job of drafting human lives and the laborer in the factory," Nye, chairman of the senate munitions committee, declared at a peace rally in Convention Hall, "but it doesn't do much else."

He said the United States entered the World War to protect the profits of private munitions manufacturers whom he charged sold "to every nation that had the money to buy."

"We won the war but we didn't win the peace," he said. "We lost every cause we fought for."

Authorities are investigating irregularities in the use of supplies and food, also. Girls referred to him as "Old Creepy."

Mrs. Frieda Pickett, Brooklyn housewife, and her son Charles, demand a total of $75,000 for injuries received when the gorilla attacked them. The woman charges the gorilla embraced her and caused internal injuries. The son was obliged to have a toe amputated as a result of being hurled through a door.

ITALY TAKES OVER ALL SHIP BUILDING

Extensive Navy Plans Expected as Reply to British.

ROME, April 18.—(P)—An extensive new Italian naval program will be announced shortly in the chamber of deputies, informed sources said today, as the official gazette published a decree giving the state control of naval construction industries.

The decree provides for state control through purchase by the Italian equivalent of the United States Reconstruction Finance Corporation of more than 50 percent of the shares of naval construction companies having a minimum of $5,000,000 capitalization.

Authoritative quarters regarded the plan as Italy's answer to the huge British rearmament program.

'Noiseless Navy' To Foil Foe Ears Sought by U. S.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—(P) Secret research by which the navy hopes to develop a nearly "noiseless navy" to escape enemy listeners was disclosed today by Charles Edison, assistant secretary, and son of the late inventor.

The engineering experiment station at Annapolis, Edison said, is now engaged in a study designed to "reduce the noise levels of various machinery units on board ship." The propeller beat and other noises of a ship now are picked up at long distances by "submarine ears"—microphones which record sound waves transmitted through water.

"High noise levels," Edison said, "are objectionable from both the standpoint of tactical and personnel efficiency. Design modifications and the application of the most suitable sound-absorbing materials have proven most effective in noise reduction."

NEW USES FOR COTTON

Resolutions adopted at the recently held chemurgic conference in Macon urge immediate establishment of an adequate cotton laboratory, properly financed and equipped with trained personnel, for the purposes of discovering new uses for cotton fiber, in order that the south may increase, or at least maintain, its present production of cotton.

The resolutions adopted by the chemurgic conference are predicated upon the statement that the cotton plant, for each pound of fiber, produces two pounds of human food in its oil and feed for livestock, and it is pointed out that, while it may, under present market conditions, be advisable to curtail the production of cotton, that such a reduction in the crop would result in a parallel reduction in this much-needed human food and feed for livestock.

It is pointed out that today enormous quantities of vegetable oils are being imported annually into this country, imports that would not be needed were it possible to raise a sufficiently large cotton crop. Thus the double advantage to the south of finding sufficient new demand for the fiber to warrant an increase in the annual crop is self-evident.

In this respect it is interesting to note that at the same conference in Macon, Thomas C. Law, of Atlanta, revealed discovery of a new method of making high-quality margarine from vegetable fat without the necessity of churning it in milk, a process hitherto deemed indispensable.

There is an annual underconsumption of approximately 2,000,000,000 pounds of food fats used to supplement the bread diet, according to the United States Bureau of Home Economics. It is easy to realize, therefore, the importance of newly discovered means of making high-grade margarine from vegetable fats.

Thus there is a possible market for 2,000,000,000 additional pounds of cottonseed oil, provided the cotton crop can be increased sufficiently to produce this amount. And the only way to make possible a profitable increase in the cotton crop is by discovery of new uses for the fiber so that the world demand will be such as to maintain the price at a level sufficiently above cost of production to make it profitable to the grower.

There are, of course, some states which have, shortsightedly, enacted legislation to handicap the sales of margarine. That legislators generally, however, are realizing the mistake of such laws is becoming evident and it is believed their repeal generally will only be a matter of a few years.

While the day of repeal for those laws is approaching, why not devote our effort and time, through proper laboratory work, to the discovery of new uses for cotton fiber so that the south may once again find it profitable to raise her cotton without acreage or yield restrictions?

AN IMPROVEMENT

For the first three months of 1937 Atlanta reported a highly gratifying decrease in the number of fatalities in her channels of traffic. This year's toll, for the first quarter, was 11 dead, compared to 20 killed for the corresponding period of 1936.

The recording line has begun to move in the right direction, after years of steadily mounting horror. It is up to every citizen, as well as to her law enforcement officers, to strive toward the perfection which is so much nearer today than it was one year ago.

Both motorists and pedestrians must always remember that death in traffic is invariably the result of a brief slackening in essential care and watchfulness. Most of the accidents in which pedestrians are involved are caused by the person on the street and it behooves him, both for his own protection and for the protection of those driving cars, to observe the traffic laws, just as the driver of an automobile must observe them.

The improved record may be largely attributed to better conditions in the local police force and to new methods of traffic control. Such a reduction in deaths cannot all be attributed to happy chance and, in so far as it is the direct result of better police work, every member of the local force, from Chief Hornaby down to the newest patrolman, is due warm commendation. For, if those nine who did not die this year, had died, among them might, as easily as not, have been you who read or one of your dearest ones.

THE DUTIES OF A JURIST

United States Judge E. Marvin Underwood, in taking active part in the movement to launch an Atlanta unit of the Boys' Club of America, is demonstrating the new conception of the duties of a jurist. Primarily, of course, it is the purpose of the bench to adjudicate disputes, whether they be civil disputes, between citizens, or criminal disputes between alleged violators of the laws and the state.

A new, and possibly more vital function of a judge, however, is to prevent crime and to decrease the criminal population. The sentences he metes to convicted offenders are supposed to be of a corrective, rather than a punitive nature, aimed not as the revenge of society upon an enemy, but as the effort of the state to reform that offender and to transform him from an enemy to a worthy member of society itself.

In advocating the formation of a local organization which will take boys before they have developed criminal tendencies and to teach them they will escape antagonism with the law, Judge Underwood takes thoroughly logical steps. By contacting the boy whose surroundings are such as to presuppose his later entry into the ranks of crime and by saving him, before he makes his first misstep, more can be done to reduce the population of our jails and prisons than by any other means. And it should be, by all right, the ambition of a sincere and worthy judge to decrease, rather than increase, the number of inmates of our penal institutions.

SOUTHERN CAPITAL GETS BUSY

Southerners are steadily becoming more interested in the use of home capital to develop home industries. Especially has John Temple Graves II emphasized the widespread advantages from such investments.

Recently Dr. J. Samuel Guy, speaking before a forum at Cartersville, said:

The natural resources of Georgia are now beginning to receive the attention of many outside of the state. As a result, foreign capital is being heavily invested. The investment in the rayon mill at Rome, as well as the more than $50,000,000 investment in paper mills, is almost entirely foreign. One naturally asks the question why Georgia bankers should deposit our surplus cash with New York banks and have this or other money of equal value reinvested to develop our own natural resources.

It would be safe to say that more than $100,000,000 of perfectly good Georgia money could be safely invested in the coming new industries of the state.

New and interesting applications of chemistry to the products of the Georgia farm are bound to come. Everyone knows that real profits come with the industrial development of these products—after they leave the possession of the farmer.

Those people manufacturing edible oils from cottonseed oil or soybean oil make huge profits as compared with the small profits that come to the farmer for his part of the industry. A plea is made for the financial interests of the state to back the efforts now being made by the Chemical Foundation. One friend of the south, living in New York and believing in the south, has contributed liberally of his own money to establish the paper industries here. Surely after he has proven the possibility of this venture there can be no real excuse for Georgians permitting Canadian and other foreign capital to get the cream from the paper mills which are rapidly coming our way. It seems certain that more than $50,000,000 of foreign money will be wanted in our state to develop the paper and starch industries. While this need is fully appreciated by New York bankers, shall we permit our own southern money to stand idle? The greatest possible need for Georgia today is the confidence of our financial interests.

Certainly Dr. Guy here gives southern leaders something to think about. There is no sound reason why the south should send its money to New York banks to draw a low interest while the money is reinvested in this section to bring lucrative profits.

We need to get all of the benefits if the south is to be properly developed. Why not, therefore, use home capital to the greatest extent possible?

A bunch of Marie Antoinette's old bills have just been auctioned. They read like an afternoon's hard shopping by a sweepstake winner.

An electric eye device, which not only detects but captures burglars, is a big improvement on the police dog, as it won't be swerved with a hamburger.

It's a small world, unfortunately. A dictator 4,000 miles away gets up on the wrong side of the bed and scrap metal shoots up two cents a pound.

A "radio spy" has been developed by the United States navy to keep track of enemy ships. Still, we doubt if the machine will ever wholly supersede the blonde.

LET'S CALL THE LIMIT

(From the Charlotte Observer.)

Do the American people know what government is costing them?

If they do know, do they care?

And if they care, are they doing anything to let those know who foist these taxes upon them that they have about enough of it?

The old grab bag has been so severely attacked within these last years that it already threatens to become empty.

And when the average taxpayer consults his receipts for payments for governmental upkeep, he, at once, concludes that it is beyond reason to expect him to keep it forever filled to the fullness now being required in order to keep up the emptying process.

If you are an average person, government spent $142 of your money last year. If you are head of a family of four, that means $568 of your earnings went for taxes.

The total cost of government, according to the Commentator, was close to $18,000,000,000 in 1936. That represents spending at the rate of almost $1,500,000,000 a month; $49,000,000 a day, Sundays and holidays included, and $34,000 an hour.

In 1936 our national income was $469 per capita—and total governmental debt $422.

The American people are burdened with a debt of incalculable size. They are faced with taxes that can only be described by the word confiscatory. And still they permit the politicians to spend extravagantly—while they too often scramble for their part of the bounty like islanders diving for coins.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON.

MESS WASHINGTON, April 18.—The government is moving along daily with a dull spring air of assurance, but underneath there has rarely been such lack of order. Nearly everything seems to be involved in confusion. Price policy, budget, sit-downs, taxes, government finances, government reorganization, new NRA, new supreme court, hours and wages, armaments, and nearly anything you can mention.

Some of these conditions may clear up shortly; others may become more serious. But, for the present, there is little clarity of thought about action or detailed purposes in connection with anything.

For instance, there is no legislative program and has been none since congress started in January. Old hands cannot remember when a legislative program was lacking after three and a half months of congressional debate.

The reason is obvious. Congress cannot formulate a program when it does not know what legislation is to be marked "must." President Roosevelt has been blocked and delayed for one reason or another in working out his objectives.

What he does in the next 30 days may tell the tale for the next three years.

TAXES A very definite semi-official assurance is abroad in certain financial quarters that there will not be a tax bill. The explanation for all this talk about one, they say, is Treasury financing strategy. Experienced bond market men have noticed that, whenever the Treasury is confronted with a financing problem, as at present, a flurry of unofficial tax increase stories appear. After the financing is complete, the talk sometimes dies down.

This evidence, however, is not conclusive. There may or may not be a tax bill. You will know definitely in mid-May.

REORGANIZATION The President's government reorganization plan is being severely cuffed around backstage. The joint congressional committee which is supposed to be formulating the legislation is so mixed up it has not held a meeting for the last two weeks.

In the end, the President probably will get his six new secretaries. Committee men seem to feel that, if Mr. Roosevelt says he needs these new jobs, they cannot go behind his request. They are somewhere near as enthusiastic about creating the two new government departments (Welfare for Jokes and Public Works for Hopkins) as their published words would indicate. They may grant it and they may not.

They already are determined not to give the President control over the budgets of several independent commissions.

Sentiment appears crystallizing against placing the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Federal Communications Commission under departmental control. It's better than a 50-50 bet that their present independent status will be maintained.

Present state of the legislation, however, is decidedly muddled. The outcome really depends upon whom you talk to.

DROPPED The new ordainers have practically given up on disarmament. No public word has been spoken on the subject, but the various things which have been tried out on the inside are said to have been filed away.

REWRITING What they will do about the budget spending and the related subject of the government bond market is up to Mr. Roosevelt's message this week on relief and budget revision. Evidence is available that he tore up his original message, or at least abandoned his original idea. The new one may be more to the liking of the Ecclesiastical school of curtailment and budget balancing, not merely on paper, but in fact.

The only really dangerous factor in the situation is prices. On this, he still has his unannounced "plan," but no one knows what he will do with it. There will be legislation on this subject, and probably also on the new NRA and hours-wages, again no one knows what.

NULLIFICATION There will be no sit-down legislation, unless the current spread of small strikes breaks into big ones. The President himself gave an indication on this by amplifying his silence on the subject at his last two press conferences.

When first asked whether he had any comment on sit-downs, his reply was, "What sit-downs?" The second time, in response to the same inquiry, he merely chuckled.

HUMAN ANGLE Few authorities can recall a time when a President of the United States was beset with so many confusing problems in peace time. Even in the early days of the New Deal, there were only one or two subjects hanging fire at a time, and the only problem was to work them out. Now there are dozens of problems pressing for solution and few acceptable solutions being suggested—that is, solutions acceptable from a presidential standpoint.

Some callers have believed the President shows as much sign of being nettled as he ever has, although, this, of course, does not mean he is worrying much more than usual. He has a faculty for taking things as they come.

A Game
For Auto Drivers.
Here's a game for drivers of automobiles that can be played in the parlor and which may provide the participants some valuable personal information.

One player, the "driver," sits in a chair with his feet together in front of him. Of course on the floor, you dope.

The other player stands two feet in front of the "driver." This second man holds a coin between his thumb and forefinger, four feet above the floor. The "driver" watches the coin.

He didn't say so definitely, but he gave every indication the ring was not all his store of valuables and that he had stolen them all, somewhere. Also that the police were not far behind him and he needed the money he'd gain by sacrificing such a valuable item in order to get away with the remainder of his "loot."

It was reprehensible, I know, but the young office worker was tempted to secure a big bargain. He was to be married and was really in the market for a diamond engagement ring.

So he closed the deal with the furtive salesman and bought the ring in question for three dollars. For a diamond engagement ring? Truly, a bargain.

Only he found, the following day, there are a dozen stores in town where he can duplicate his purchase, any day, for 10 cents.

One of the greatest mysteries of the seas floated into New York harbor on April 6, 1901. The sailing ship Commodore, of Philadelphia, was found without a living thing aboard—not even a cat or rat. It flew no flag, it carried no log, it did not appear in the shipping registries or port records of any country in the world.

Fair Enough

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Miami MIAMI, Fla., April 18.—Talk I swear I don't know what to make of this crazy, crooked, hilarious, but altogether pleasant town. The locals don't know what to make of it either, and perhaps the best way is not to look for the answer, but just take it easy and have a good time.

For a dozen years, the boys have been saying that the rough-and-tumble days were now past and that starting next fall Miami would grow up, turn square and lead an honest life. And always next fall, the opening of the horse track, slot-machine and roulette seasons brings in the rakings and scrapings of Broadway and Chicago, swindlers, fancy-men, journeymen thieves and ordinary hustlers to hold carnival until the saxophones sob home, sweet home in April.

The local statesmen put in the off-season calling one another porch-climbers and door-mat thieves in competition for a lot of penny-ante public offices which don't pay enough in salary to buy their cigarettes. The leading publishers also join the sport and print fearless announcements that crime must go while a changing group of intermittent blackmail sheets chisel along, printing scurrilous insinuations about people who do nothing about it because they couldn't collect a quarter even if they won in court in addition to which the scoundrels might haul off and prove all counts to a jury.

Exchange Right now, two of the big-shot publishers are engaged in an exchange of insults which in the frontier journalism of Mark Twain's time would have been called for a set-in-the-ink war.

But one calls the other a grafter and that one calls the first one a notorious racketeer and the public is left to conclude that there might be a grain of truth in both allegations as the merry war wages on. They claim to have some sort of libel law in Florida but it must be a dead letter like the laws against graft because some of the copy would make the foulest aspersions New York blackmail rags read like fawning flattery.

All this would be harmless but for a streak of shocking cruelty in the community's dealings with down-and-out people and occasionally with real bad men who have the misfortune to get caught.

They got a single-handed jewel thief named Henry Sitamore a few years ago and gave him 40 years which may have saved his right mind. But then he broke jail and gave them quite a chase and since then he has spent five years in solitary confinement. His attorney is going to court next Monday not to get him out of prison but to get him out of solitary on the plea that he is going crazy.

Meanwhile, there have been deals between public officials and the underworld which have outscored the total of Henry Sitamore's thieving a thousand to one, but nobody ever spends an hour in jail for giving or taking graft. The Flemish people have not been de-nationalized, as was the avowed purpose of the Belgian state from the days of its creation by France. Flanders did not go under and today a new budding and blossoming of Flemish culture stands before the door.

But a greater danger than the French influence would be a German alliance for Flanders. You cannot make a Frenchman out of a Fleming. History has proved that. I am not so sure about the possibility of completely Teutonizing the Flemish people, who are of Germanic blood and who speak a Germanic language. In 50 years' time the whole of Belgium would be Prussianized in appearance and spirit if an eventual close alliance with the Reich opened the way for an incursion of Prussian cultural influences.

If there is to be any collaboration at all with another people, surely this should be with the blood-kinsmen of the Flemish people, that is to say with Holland, whose language Flanders speaks and whose traditions and history is inextricably interwoven with those of the Flemish land. The foundations are being laid for such a close collaboration. But not by violence or force or by upsetting the existing framework of the Belgian state. It is a natural evolution, irresistible and historic. Time will take care that these brothers of the same house, Flemings and Hollanders, shall dwell together in unity and enrich the world again, as in the past, with a joint Netherlands contribution to the sum total of civilization.

Slots Are Now the slots have been voted out by popular referendum but if you think there will be no slots in Miami next year you are just being naive.

Henry Sitamore's plight is not likely to bring many hearts for he is a very low character and if you might feel at least a twinge of resentment against the so-called hobo express which is a motor truck that carries out hungry and busted men whose only crime is poverty and dumps them over the northern county line every morning in the big season.

You may be sure their crime is no worse than destitution because they are very tough with independent criminals like Sitamore, having no underworld connections. If these men were guilty of anything, anything would be turned loose on the next county, still broke and facing the horrible prospect of marching through Georgia, where the sheriffs are still more cruel, if that can be.

Yet, while busted, weak and hungry Americans, including a possible few with self-respect, are riding the hobo express, the town positively crawls with well-known police characters from big northern cities and people seem to think that is all right.

I tell you this is a cock-eyed country. There never was anything like it anywhere.

Fighting a Buzz Saw Isn't Self-Defense If You Set It Going

Man alone of all animals possesses a sense of justice or a love of revenge for its own sake. If one man does a heinous wrong, his neighbors cannot rest content till they have pursued him to the gallows.

In lands where the law is respected and enforced, the injured party and his neighbors require nothing more than vengeance to the constituted authorities; but wherever the law is weak or absent—in Sicily before Mussolini, in certain mountainous regions, the underworld, and in various places not yet civilized—the wronged revenge themselves by taking an eye for an eye.

This private vengeance has resulted in the most horrible and most degrading institution known to man—the feud.

When one wronged man kills another, his revenge is complete. But that is not the end, for the relatives of the slain man now feel wronged and require revenge. Thus one murder leads to another each in payment for one that preceded it, and there is no end.

Every male child in the two families is born to be a murderer. He learns the duty and honor of killing as he learns his A B C. Uncles and cousins twice removed must kill or be killed.

Thus in time the hateful strife that began in the lust for revenge becomes a war of self-defense. Men who feel no hate or remember no reason to quarrel must say to themselves: "We can have no peace or security till our enemies are killed to the last man."

It is the absence of law that encourages private vengeance; and the want of any power under heaven to avenge them or contrain them requires nations to seek justice in the same way.

Dictators are dangerous in precisely the same degree that on man is easier to offend than millions. The service, now explanation, infuriated by irresponsible critics in another land, can begin the wreck of civilization by one curt order.

The helpless millions have no desire for war. But when the rulers antagonize one another, one giving offense and the other retaliating, each in turn wronging the other's land in revenge for a hurt done to his, the people themselves become enraged and clamor for the "justice" that means vengeance.

Then war, and ever-increasing horror as reprisal follows reprisal, till the world is filled with wreckage and rotting corpses. Vengeance is a monster, and there is no hope for the world but men of wisdom and good will have learned to keep it chained.

Belgium Remains Democratic.

HOUSTON, Texas.—In spite of the inspirational glamor of its movement's name, Christus Rex (Christ the King) M. Leon Degrelle, the young Fascist leader in Belgium, has been overwhelmingly beaten at the polls by M. Paul Van Zeeland. The event is significant from more than one point of view. In the first place it shows that the Belgian people are averse to dictatorship in any form, whether from the left or from the right. Secondly, the rejection of M. Degrelle and his program signifies that Belgium remains on the side of France in the general setup in Europe. M. Degrelle, namely favors an alliance with Hitler and not infrequently compared himself to the Fuehrer, frankly saying that the future of Belgium lies with Germany.

The salvation of Belgium does not lie either with France or with Germany, but in the strength and industry of her own people. The French domination of the last hundred years or so has been demonstrated as futile and wasteful. The Flemish people have not been de-nationalized, as was the avowed purpose of the Belgian state from the days of its creation by France. Flanders did not go under and today a new budding and blossoming of Flemish culture stands before the door.

But a greater danger than the French influence would be a German alliance for Flanders. You cannot make a Frenchman out of a Fleming. History has proved that. Governor Gilmer.
George Rockingham Gilmer was born in Oglethorpe county, Ga., April 11, 1790, 39 years before he became Governor of that state and wrote his name imperishably into history by his defiance of the United States supreme court.

A Cherokee, Corn Tassel, killed another American. His trial was held in a court of white men in disregard of a treaty Georgia negotiated with the Cherokees. Corn Tassel appealed to the supreme court. The justices ordered Georgia to desist. Gold had been discovered on Cherokee land and Governor Gilmer did not intend to respect scraps of paper that would interfere with his domination of Cherokees. He refused to obey the court. In defiance of the court, Corn Tassel was hanged.

Not haunted, the court upheld Americanian treaties and laws another case. President Jackson who had no love for the court then said: "John Marshall made the decision, now let him enforce it." It wasn't.

Germany Decees.
It seems to be a fatality of the regime in Germany that it must go from persecution to persecution. It started with the Jews and now extends to Democrats, Catholics and Protestants. No one now escapes the repressive apparatus of the state and men are no longer safe in their most inner ethical or religious beliefs.

The latest decree issued by the secret police is to the effect that it is to be the duty of every citizen to report to the police any person who is suspected of being a Jew, a Democrat, a Catholic or a Protestant.

According to Professor Wilson of the University of Virginia, the number of physicians in proportion to population is South Carolina, with Alabama ranking next, then North Carolina. The greatest number of physicians is in the District of Columbia, and the next greatest is California, then in New York. The District of Columbia has a physician for every 317 people while South Carolina has one for every 1,541 people. The comparatively smaller number of physicians in the south is due, it is explained, to the predominantly rural nature of the population.

"It seems," declares the letter, "that many newly graduated physicians are missing opportunities by preferring to locate in large cities where the medical profession is already overcrowded, rather than in certain smaller communities where the need for up-to-date medical knowledge and skill is acute."

The estimates, of course, do not include the south rural "conjure doctors." The poor showing of this region is due in important measure, of course, to the poverty and ignorance of so many of our people. Even if more physicians were willing to live in the rural communities many of them would starve for want of enough patients and of pay from the patients they had.

Killer Shoots at Son of Victim, Threatens To Clean Up Neighborhood.

OAKLAND, Md., April 18.—(P)—Corporal Thomas Currie, of the state police, brought to this county seat late today details of a mountain tragedy in which he reported, one man shot another dead in a wheat field with a high powered rifle and then threatened to "clean up" the neighborhood.

Quinter Hook, well-to-do 60-year-old farmer, was killed shortly after he had gone to the field to tend his cows.

Currie said the sheriff and state's attorney were told that after Hook was shot in his field, Clyde Friend, 36, had fired with his long-range rifle at a son of the farmer, but the shot went wild.

Currie related that H. Shroyer told the investigators that immediately after the Hook slaying, Friend came to his home and said:

"I have just shot Quinter Hook down in the wheat field and there are several around here I want to get. If any of those officers come down from Oakland, I will get them, too."

Avoiding Cattle on Road.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., April 18.—(P)—Three persons were killed and a fourth was injured in an automobile accident today 18 miles south of here. The dead were identified by investigating officers as:

Paul G. Jeans, 35, Miami, editor of the Miami Tribune.

M. Victor Miller, 32, Miami, attorney for the Tribune.

Edward Morr, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Mrs. Morr was in a hospital here with injuries received in the accident.

Sheriff Johnson said the car in which Jeans and Miller were riding apparently crashed into the machine occupied by the Cincinnati couple. He said his investigation revealed the Miami's machine apparently skidded after swerving in an effort to avoid some cattle reportedly on the highway.

HOPE IS ABANDONED FOR PUMMELED WIFE

FLINT, Mich., April 18.—(P)—Physicians abandoned hope today for the recovery of Mrs. Eleanor Davis, 73, who was beaten at a farm near Fenton last Wednesday night by the person who killed her husband and sister.

Police had planned to ask Mrs. Davis, who never has regained consciousness, the name or description of the killer.

Police and sheriff's deputies continued their search for Roy Larson, missing farm hand who was named in a warrant as the slayer of Jehiel H. Davis, 76, and his sister, Mrs. Lydia Hildebrandt, 70.

By ARTHUR CAIN.

Our erratic run of luck while in fair Germany was enough to convert us into the most fatal of fatalists. The best laid plans were useless and the more we tried to figure things out in advance the further we got from getting on around the world. It had been a long time since we had heard from the States, not since our call back in Athens, Greece, in fact, and we wondered if it wouldn't be best just to take things as they came and forget about getting around the world within our specified time of two years. A series of events during the month of the Olympics convinced me that luck would play a greater part in my travels than my own resourcefulness.

We were still enjoying the look and feel of the poker game in Berlin. Our marks were stretching out indefinitely, although we were now at the best hotel and quite lavish with the celebration. Germany was enchanting. Days spent sleeping late and rambling contentedly through the beautiful forests on the edge of towns and nights of splendor in our new acquired tails and topers impressed us with the fact that tempus does indeed fugit. All the concerts and exhibitions began to look upon Cain as a steady patron.

Job Available.

Then one day we were informed that an American ship had docked in Hamburg and a job was doubtless available. And it might be the last opportunity I would have for several weeks to get out of Germany and be on my way. The ship was going back to France, England and Ireland and I could choose my own destiny from there. This sudden news shocked me into something resembling action. I am conscience began to annoy me immensely. Should I let a good time here in Berlin stop me from accomplishing my chief objective? Hardly.

So we left in haste the next night for Hamburg, the largest seaport in all Germany, and the favorite spot of sailors the world over. Although we had gone to great trouble

SANTA CRUZ, Cal., April 18.—(P)—Mrs. Sally Boggs, who police said was shot by her retired army officer husband when he mistook her 12-year-old son for "another man" in her bedroom, lay near death today.

District Attorney Knight said Allan D. Boggs, 16 years older than his 37-year-old wife, would be charged with murder if she dies.

Boggs was quoted by Knight as saying: "I suspected her of affairs with other men but I had no proof."

He believed he had found such proof, he told the district attorney, when he followed his wife to the home of friends. She was in bed and he, by mistake, was her son by a former marriage.

NEW YORK, April 18.—(P)—The Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America announced today the launching of a program which it hopes to arouse the nation's conscience in behalf of slum clearance and low-cost housing projects.

Of the program, in which Catholics and Jews will be invited to participate with Protestants, the Rev. Dr. Samuel McCrea Cavert, the council's general secretary, said "bad housing is conducive to juvenile delinquency, crime and disease; it robs homes of the God-given rights to sunlight and fresh air and creates an environment tragically detrimental to the standards for which the churches stand."

Rabbi James G. Heller, of Cincinnati, will be heard on the program of the fourth annual Southern Regional Conference of Jewish Welfare Agencies to be held at the Biltmore hotel next Sunday. It was announced yesterday following a meeting of the local committee on arrangements.

A., the Hebrew Union College and the United Palestine Appeal. Rabbi Heller will speak at the closing dinner of the conference Sunday night along with George Backer, of New York, president of the Jewish Telegraphic Agency.

Julian V. Boehm, chairman of the local committee on arrangements, announced the following additional committee appointments: Mrs. Herbert Haas and Mrs. David Marx, in charge of general hospitality; committee to follow up registration and attendance at sessions and dinner meetings, Mrs. Sam Levy, Mrs. E. DROUTH UNLIKELY,

Better Moisture Condition of Soil Is Expected To Halt Dry Cycle.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—(UP)—Weather Bureau officials tonight scanned their charts and graphs and then announced unofficially that they don't expect another drouth on the Great Plains this year.

They won't back their prediction with a bet, however. They remember the record of three major drouths in the last six years which brought parched fields and baked plants instead of bumper harvests. They believe that the dry cycle should now be ending but they can't guarantee it.

Rains and snows that fell in the last three months from the Dakotas to Texas have brought better moisture conditions in the soil than existed in the spring of either 1934 or 1936, both disastrous drouth years on the prairies. Normal rains during the growing season would insure good crops. Rainfall during the next few months will determine how much will be harvested.

EPPELSON, Tenn., April 18.—
(P)—The east Tennessee mountain section from which news of the marriage of 9-year-old Eunice Winstead sited weeks ago today yielded the story of another child-bride.

Geneva Hamby, who was reared in an orphanage, was married March 28 to Homer Peels, towering man of the mountains.

The license lists Geneva's age as 18 but her grandmother, Mrs. Sarah Hamby, said she is "only 12." Peels' age is listed as 32.

County Judge May, who said he authorized issuance of the license on receipt of a letter from Peels saying the girl was 18 and an orphan, stated he learned later that "she was not more than 10 years of age."

Judge May said he had "known the facts the license would never have been issued."

Mrs. Gus Hollingshead, wife of a minister who has been interested in Geneva, declared she was "no more than nine."

Both Geneva and her lanky husband refused to discuss her age or their marriage.

SIBLEY AND BYRD DEMAND ECONOMY OF GOVERNMENT

Chamber Bases Plea on Necessity of Modifying Profits Tax.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—(UP)—New demands for economy in government were made by business and congressional leaders tonight as President Roosevelt prepared to send his revised budget to the capitol this week.

Harper Sibley, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, urged a "very moderate lowering" of the scale of federal spending to permit modification of the undistributed corporate profits tax law which he said contains inequities "detrimental to both public and private interests."

Byrd Urges Cut.

Simultaneously Senator Byrd, Democrat, Virginia, indicated he favored sharp reduction in the government's administrative personnel. He made public preliminary studies by the Brookings Institution undertaken for his senate committee investigating executive agencies.

The aggregate net pay roll for the civil executive branch, the report said, exceeded $1,500,000,000 annually, exclusive of relief, military and pension rolls.

F.D.R. Drafts Message.

President Roosevelt, meanwhile, worked overtime recasting the administration's spending plans in the light of indications that federal income would fall millions below the figure estimated in the budget submitted last January.

The possibility of widening the tax base to reach lower incomes is being reviewed.

Sibley, in urging modification of the undistributed corporate profits levy, declared "we are not unaware of the paramount importance of obtaining a balance of the federal budget."

"It seems to us, however," he added, "that a very moderate lowering of the scale of federal expenditures would permit such changes in the corporate surtax as would avoid the present consequences which seem detrimental to both public and private interests."

In the dramatic scene above, a dying wife points to her husband, Joseph F. Conroy, as the man who shot her. This photograph shows Conroy (center) handcuffed to Los Angeles detectives at a hospital. Athens, and was a pioneer in establishing consolidated rural schools.

He is survived by his wife, three daughters, Mrs. H. J. Arrendale, of Colbert; Miss Victoria Chastain, of Marietta, and five sons, Dr. F. C. Chastain, of Moultrie; Dr. W. R. Chastain, of Jacksonville; F. D. Chastain, of Little Rock, and E. F. Chastain and H. E. Chastain, both of Colbert.

Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at Colbert Baptist church.

DETECTIVE ADMITS SLAYING OF WIFE

Spouse Pointed Him Out on Her Death Bed, Refused Kiss.

LOS ANGELES, April 18.—(P)—Awaiting an inquest set for Tuesday afternoon, Joseph F. Conroy, 32, private detective, was held in jail tonight on suspicion of murder in the shooting of his estranged wife, Esther, 30.

J. A. Stambler, police detective lieutenant and boyhood friend of Conroy, said Conroy appeared at the Hollywood police station last Friday night, handed over a pistol and said he shot his wife at the home of S. R. Searl, stock broker who employed her as a maid.

Stambler said Conroy admitted firing several shots, some of which barely missed Searl, who was in the kitchen when Conroy appeared. Stambler said Conroy told him he was enraged when his wife spurned his attempts to effect a reconciliation.

Stambler said Mrs. Conroy identified her husband as the man who shot her. He said she also refused the request of her husband for "one last kiss," saying "you ought to be satisfied now; I'm going to die."

If a tree trunk leans, cells on the lower side may become deformed and compressed, and boards cut from the tree may warp and twist due to this "compression wood."

15 RECTORS WARN CHURCH ON DIVORCE

Letter Opposes Any Effort To Void Canon Against Remarriages.

NEW YORK, April 18.—(P)—A statement signed by 15 prominent Episcopal clergymen, it became known today, has been sent to every Episcopal bishop and priest in the United States urging them to oppose efforts to have the church legalize remarriage after a divorce.

The statement declared that marriage "for Christian people" after divorce is contrary to the teachings of Christ and that the church has no power by canon law or otherwise to change the teaching on this matter.

The signers said there might be a "legitimate question about the right of the church to bless" remarriages of innocent parties in divorces obtained on grounds of adultery "but in no others."

A spokesman for the signers said the move was intended to show sympathy with the stand of English church officials on the Duke of Windsor's forthcoming marriage to Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson and to protest against efforts to persuade the Episcopal convention, which meets soon in Cincinnati, to modify its canons in this respect.

PRISONER SEEKS SOLITARY RELEASE

Hearing Today on Charge of 4 Years' Punishment After Escape.

STARKE, Fla., April 18.—(P)—Harry Sitamore, serving a 40-year sentence in the state prison for robbery, will appear before Judge Adkins here Monday morning to seek freedom from solitary confinement.

Sitamore was convicted in Dade county for a jewel robbery. He escaped four years ago and was recaptured in New Orleans. Since that time, his attorneys charge, he has been kept in solitary confinement at the prison and has received "cruel and inhuman treatment."

Sitamore's original petition said "petitioner has been held in such solitary confinement continuously for nearly four years and that his principal food has been bread and water."

"The lack of exercise and the proper food have broken his health, until he is a mere skeleton and shadow of the man that he once was."

CENTRAL ROAD OFFICIAL REPORTED NEAR DEATH

SAVANNAH, Ga., April 18.—(P)—The condition of J. Henry Baldwin, division superintendent of the Central of Georgia railway, was reported at the hospital tonight to be very low. Baldwin has been in critical condition for more than a week. He is a patient at Central of Georgia hospital here.

Criticism Asked for Guild Plays, But Faults Are Lacking in Late.

By RALPH T. JONES.

Executives of the Atlanta Theater Guild made an extremely passionate plea a few days ago for absolutely honest criticisms of the stage productions they are now offering us every so often at the Atlanta theater.

Their latest presentation, "The Pursuit of Happiness," that play about the good old days when "bundling" was admittedly a general social custom had its first performance at the Atlanta theater Saturday night. It will be there, it is believed, for at least three, and possibly, four days this week. Anyway, it will be given at 8:30 o'clock tonight and a few more nights at the same hour.

First criticism: Why doesn't the program carry the information of the play dates. It is absolutely non-informative in this respect.

Now, bearing in mind the appeal of the guild leaders, there are some terrible criticisms that must be made about this show. But let's put off the unpleasant remarks for a while and talk about the really splendid production, to begin with.

The performance given Saturday night was the smoothest, best timed, best acted I've ever seen for a first night, either professional or amateur. In fact it would have rated a high mark as a 30 performance.

The guild members who fill the cast were professional in everything except name only. The way down the line their work was superb and deserves high plaudits.

Martha deGollan in the female lead was lovely to look upon, charming to hear and every bit as desirable a little actress should Peggy Kemper as the servant, must, surely, have played the role for months on Broadway to have acquired all the grand "business" she introduces. Likewise Peggy has the kind of looks that inspire telephone numbers in those ill-reputed books some men carry in vest pockets.

Donald Bolton scored splendidly as the hero of the play. Paul C. Penter Jr. made the Puritan preacher thoroughly objectionable as he was supposed to do. He lifted the character out of the noxious by a touch of exaggeration that provided humor. W. J. Reas as the Connecticut captain of militia; Edgar Neely Jr., as the Virginia captain of cavalry; and Booth as the wife; Graham McDonald as the sheriff and F. Jackson as the negro servant hardly have been improved upon.

The stage settings were so authentic and delightful that full half the home-makers present were hunting the antique shops for duplicates, while the costume was gasp provoking—mean admiration gasps, of course.

And Walter Sheets and his orchestra furnished music that was worth the price of admission. With a special nod to Marino Coppelli, the piccolo player.

Now for that terrible criticism. First place, Pate Jackson is much steeper than in his voice. Few of his overly-drawn lines were the only ones missed from my seat on the fifth row.

Secondly—and presumably it can't be helped—but it was slightly peculiar to hear a bunch of folks talking purest Georgian patting Connecticut Yankees as the only southern character, played by Edgar Neely Jr., assuming an exaggerated Virginia brogue.

And now, closing, really I can find any other tiny thing to criticize even if the guild executives are disappointed.

Splendid Stage Show

Features Capitol Bill

A swingy stage show, "Femme Follies of 1937," and an exciting feature film, "The Girl From Scotland Yard," combined yesterday to delight opening day audiences at the Capitol theater.

Karen Morley is the star of the feature picture, which unfolds a new and different type of mystery story. Miss Morley is assigned to find the location of a death-dealing ray and put it out of business.

There is plenty of action, and the film moves at a rapid pace, holding interest throughout. Besides Miss Morley, the cast includes Robert Baldwin, seen as an American newspaperman.

On the stage, "Femme Follies of 1937," brings a variety of entertainment with star acts featuring an all-girl swing band. Known as the Debutante Syncopators, the girl orchestra presents a splendid program of popular numbers.

The musical portion of the entertainment is augmented by Enrico Leide and his Capitolians. Short subjects round out the bill.

SHANGHAI, April 18.—The first real glimpse of hope, the first glimmer of justification for my confidence, came Monday evening, December 14, in the form of a telegram from Mr. Donald, then at Sian, saying that the generalissimo was well, that he was comfortably situated, and that he (Mr. Donald) was with him. This telegram added to Han-chen (Chang Hsueh-ling) urged Dr. Kung to go to Sian, and especially wished me to go. In a later telegram direct to me, Chang asked me to go to Sian and assured me no harm was intended to the generalissimo.

To me it was amazing that such a telegram should come from Sian sent by Mr. Donald. The words of some people had been made up that the generalissimo was in a serious condition, if he were not dead, and they were ready to believe anything to the contrary. They argued that Mr. Donald was sending a message designed to please the Sian people and lure Dr. Kung, finance minister, to Sian, so that those responsible for the coup would have an additional captive and therefore a longer hold in making terms.

Wire Viewed As Lure.

The wire from Chang Hsueh-ling to me was interpreted in the quarters as a scheme to lure me to Sian to hold me as a hostage. These fantastic theories, instead of impressing me, added to my convictions that it was more important that I should assist with the policy I was following to avoid fighting. I made separate efforts to go to Sian, and it was said that Dr. Kung, as well as each of my sisters and others, offered to go with me. Those favoring fighting did not seem to me to be overmerciful in their endeavor to frustrate my resistance, and in the heat of arguments there did not appear to be much time for gentleness.

Telegraph communications with Sian had been definitely interrupted somewhere, and wires were censored, but I received a surprise Tuesday afternoon (December 15) when I heard Mr. Donald talking to me from Loyang on a long distance telephone. He told me that morning, through bad weather, to give me the information of the situation at Sian.

He painted a swift picture. He affirmed that the generalissimo was not being ill treated; that he had consented, on Mr. Donald's advice, to move to a comfortable house; that the generalissimo had, on the first time, talked to me to extent with Han-chen (Chang Hsueh-ling), though he was still furious and resentful; that Han-chen had expressed his determination to go with the generalissimo to Nanking, because that he had done, though wrong, as with good motives; that Han-chen was particularly anxious to go, as well as Dr. Kung, and assured me of the high respect in which he and his associates held the generalissimo had insisted that I be told not to go to Sian on any account.

Determined to Strike.

I urged Mr. Donald to fly to Nanking next day, but he refused, he had promised the generalissimo and Han-chen to return to Sian. I told him the military officers were determined to attack Sian at once and that if he returned there, he, too, probably would be killed. I urged him to form the generalissimo of the situation.

He told me that although he could not go to Nanking, James Elder (an Englishman, a close friend of Chang Hsueh-ling), who had come from Sian with me, would leave next morning for Nanking, could tell me all that had happened, and would give me a letter giving me further information. Later that night I telephoned Mr. Donald, telling him that doctors advised against Dr. Kung flying to Sian, but, in any case, could not leave as he was acting as head of the government. I asked him to find out from Han-chen if T. V. Soong (my brother), and General Ku Chu-tung (a trusted officer of the generalissimo, then chairman of Kweichow province), would be acceptable instead of Dr. Kung. I informed him that every effort was being made to prevent my going, but that in spite of everything I was determined to go. I asked him whether he had sent out any news telegrams, as was being said he was supporting Chang. He told me he had sent only two telegrams: one a short news summary and one a brief reply to a message from Allett Abend, the New York Times correspondent in Shanghai. During the day Mr. Donald's wire to Mr. Abend, which explained that the generalissimo was well and that his detention was acknowledged as wrong by Han-chen, who asserted that his motives were in the national interests, was brought to me as further evidence that Mr. Donald was supporting Chang and was falsifying facts. I was puzzled by this point of view, ascribed it to military mentality, and telegraphed Mr. Donald not to send any more wires for publication.

Correspondents Puzzled.

Correspondents and newspapers were becoming accustomed to getting replies from Mr. Donald, whenever he had been in remote places with the generalissimo, consequently could not understand his silence. Many jumped to the conclusion that things were not at all well at Sian; that he had also been seized, or that worse things had happened. This added to the confusion of thought that was now rampant as a result of military censorship, and may have been partly responsible for the grossly wild rumors that sprang into circulation.

On Wednesday morning I again phoned to Mr. Donald just before he left for Sian. I told him to persuade Han-chen to let the generalissimo return at once if he did not want to be responsible for dire calamity, and I urged upon him once more to give the generalissimo an understanding of the situation as it concerned me, and to explain clearly that I was doing my utmost to prevent any fighting.

"Fly back to Nanking from Sian," I urged him. He replied, "No, I'll stay there," he replied, and my last words were "then you'll be killed if I cannot stop the fighting."

"There may be another way," he said, "but I cannot say more."

New Plea to Chang.

Dr. Kung took the telephone from me and asked Mr. Donald to tell Chang that his very existence, to say nothing of his reputation, depended upon the safeguarding of the generalissimo and that Chang could save himself and the country if he would fly the generalissimo to Taiyuanfu and release him. If he would do that, Dr. Kung promised, everything would be forgiven.

Then I waited with whatever patience I could muster for the plane that was to leave Loyang for Nanking with Mr. Elder on board. It was forced down at Fengpu, an hour's flight to the north, and Mr. Elder did not see me till midnight.

From him I learned that the generalissimo had been injured somehow by a fall; that the whole thing was unexpected; that when daylight came he found that all of Chang Hsueh-ling's troops at Sian had been disarmed by General Yang, who was in charge of the city, and whose permits had to be obtained, even by Chang's men, to pass through the gates; that Chang had only 400 troops as bodyguards in the city, and only about 6,000 outside, and that these constituted the anti-aircraft force in control of the air field; that it was not till later in the afternoon that arms were restored to Chang's forces.

In the meantime, a body of Yang's troops had gone to the air field to drain gasoline from the tanks of a number of government airplanes grounded there. Their idea of doing that was to bayonet the tanks and destroy the planes; but they had been dissuaded by Mr. Elder.

Letter Delays Huang.

The anti-aircraft guns were then covered to prevent anyone trying to use them; all the staff was sent off the field and only the usual sentries were kept there. Colonel Huang had seen the generalissimo the previous day, but had been prevented from leaving for Nanking because the general-simo had written a letter for him to deliver to me.

As the generalissimo had read the letter aloud, Mr. Elder was able to give me the contents of it, and it showed that the generalissimo was ready to die rather than comply with anything while under duress, and was of opinion that his end was near in any event, for he expressed what he wished me to do when he died.

The significance of Mr. Donald's last sentence when speaking to me on the telephone from Loyang had kept ringing in my ears, and I asked Mr. Elder the whereabouts of the Boeing (Chang Hsueh-ling's airplane). When he replied that it was at Sian, I asked him if he thought Chang had any idea of flying off with the generalissimo in case of an attack upon Sian.

"That is possible," he answered. "I believe that is what is afoot," I remarked, and asked him where was Barr (Julius Barr, Chang's chief pilot).

"In Hankow," he surprised me by saying.

"Then who is flying the Boeing?" I asked, and when he replied "Leonard" (Royal Leonard, Chang's second pilot), I asked if he could ask Barr to come from Hankow to see me at Nanking.

"Madame," he replied, "we are all entirely at your service. Of course I will, and Barr will do anything you wish." I asked him to wire Barr to come as soon as possible.

New Facts Recognized.

Here were facts of which we knew nothing before. They seemed to show that Chang was not in a position to protect the generalissimo if other troops got out of control, and I became doubly determined to prevent an attack on the city, if I could, notwithstanding that the generalissimo himself expected and wanted it irrespective of the consequences to him.

I did not disclose to the military officers the contents of his letter to me, however, for that would have aggravated my position, and would have given them support for immediate drastic action.

Bombing of Sian certainly would have brought about the death of the generalissimo, but I was of the opinion that his life was of more value to China than his death could be, and I fought harder than ever to save it. I became more determined than ever to go to Sian, despite the realization that was now forced upon me that Chang had no troops inside the city walls and but a handful outside. This was not a pleasant situation to contemplate.

But some hope came to me that there was a definite possibility for a peaceful rather than a forceful settlement of the affair. During the night Dr. Donald wired that he had got back to Sian; had delivered my telephone messages to both the generalissimo and Han-chen, and that the Sian officials would welcome T. V. Soong and General Ku.

Days of Agony Follow.

The days that followed were days of intense agony and activity for me. Military forces had already been in action east of Sian, and although snowstorms at Sian prevented planes from crossing the mountains, I never knew when some plane or other might get through and bomb the city, as they were bombing points along the railway line between Loyang and the mountains.

The tension was somewhat relieved when I received a wire from Mr. Donald saying that the generalissimo was dispatching General Chiang Ting-wen (who had gone with him to Sian) to Nanking with an autographed letter to the minister of war, ordering cessation of bombing and fighting for three days.

This news caused some government officials to declare again that they would neither negotiate with Sian nor accept any letter or order, even in the generalissimo's own handwriting, since he may have been forced to write them. I told them they insulted their leader if they thought he would do anything under duress. "How little you who have worked so long with him understand his true character," I sighed.

But when Chiang Ting-wen arrived two days later, and they heard his story, they decided to obey the generalissimo's orders. General Chiang Ting-wen urged them to prevent any widening of the breach between Nanking and Sian by stopping the broadcasting of imprecations and maledictions and vicious newspaper articles.

Other efforts were similarly being made to restrain antagonism and secure a settlement. Sun Fo (Dr. Sun Yat-sen's son) and Dr. Wang Chung-hui (now minister of foreign affairs) consulted with me about wiring Marshal Yen Hsi-shan (pacification commissioner of Shensi and Suiyuan) to act as mediator to obtain the release of the generalissimo. We decided to ask the party and government leaders to sign a joint telegram to Yen Hsi-shan to this effect. This was done.

Barr Arrives on Scene.

Barr arrived from Hankow, and I discussed with him the possibility of Chang Hsueh-ling flying off with the generalissimo. As I had already flown over the far western regions and knew the peculiarly difficult topographical characteristics and the absence of fields, and as I knew that landing fields where government troops were stationed would be avoided, I felt that the objective would be somewhere behind the red lines, probably Sinkiang.

I asked Barr if the Boeing, fully loaded, could carry enough gas to get to some point in Sinkiang, and if ever Chang had talked of flying to anywhere in Sinkiang. "Yes," was his reply to both questions, and he and I studied maps of the region, trying to locate likely localities to which Han-chen might take the generalissimo should flight be necessitated by circumstances. I told him that if Chang did fly off I proposed to follow, and I wanted to know what plane could carry sufficient gas to get us anywhere the Boeing could go fully loaded, as it is would be, and back again without refueling.

"If we take a Douglas, with you as the only passenger, we can carry sufficient extra gas in the cabin," he replied, and I told him to stand by aid await developments should I be unable to prevent an attack being made upon Sian city.

On Saturday, December 19, one week after the generalissimo was detained, I wired Mr. Donald that T. V. Soong was starting, but I had to wire later that he had been prevented, though an hour after that I again wired he would be able to proceed. He had outmaneuvered official objection by saying he was going as a private citizen. We argued that if the government felt it was demeaning to negotiate directly with the mutineers, the

NEW YORK YANKEES

THIRTEEN YEARS in the big league. "Rookie" Gehrig signed up with the New York Yankees in 1923. By 1927 he was the American League's MOST VALUABLE PLAYER. And again in 1931, 1934, and 1936.

A GREAT FIRST BASEMAN. Lou's prowess as a slugger is matched by his play at first base. His record last year was only 6/1000ths short of PERFECT. He had 1,377 put-outs.

LOU HOLDS MORE RECORDS than any other man in the game today. Here are a few for any four-game World Series: most runs batted in (9); most home-runs (4); most bases on balls (6). He has scored 100 or more runs for 11 consecutive seasons and batted in 100 or more.

BASEBALL'S "IRON-MAN"! This season—Lou starts playing his 1,809th consecutive game. Injuries never stopped "Iron-Man" Gehrig. Once he chipped a bone in his foot—yet knocked out a homer, two doubles, and a single next day. Another time, he was knocked out by a "bean ball," yet next day walloped 3 triples in 5 innings. Gehrig's "Iron-Man" record is proof of his splendid physical condition. As Lou says: "You can bet all the years I've been playing, I've been careful about my physical condition. Smoke? I smoke and enjoy it. My cigarette is Camel."

X MARKS THE SPOT where once there was a juicy steak smothered in mushrooms—Lou's favorite dish. Gehrig is a big man. And he has a big man's appetite. Lou eats what he wants and isn't bashful about coming back for "seconds." Read what he says below.

NEW YORK, April 18.—(UP)—

The office boy's old gag, "My grandmother's being buried today,"

as good an excuse as any.

So come on, let's go out to the old ball game.

The major league pennant races open at Washington and Boston, and then the grand opening takes place Tuesday with the rest of the clubs getting into the 154-game round. A $75,000 pitcher will be recovered in the inaugural game

at Washington, where Franklin D.

Roosevelt, who formerly starred at baseball for the Athletics-Senators game. The Phillies and Bees will meet today in a double-headed affair with morning and afternoon games to celebrate Patriot's Day.

On Tuesday more than 200,000 fans are expected to crowd into seven parks. The day's largest crowd, possibly 50,000, is expected to see the Yankees-Senators game at Yankee stadium. All signs point to the greatest boxoffice year since the depression.

DESERT YANKS.

As the teams near the opening series, the World Champion New York Yankees and St. Louis Cardinals are betting favorites. The Yanks are even money to repeat and the Cardinals are 8-5 to defeat the Giants.

Some of the experts are not so sure that the Yanks are invincible as the Cards are as good as flected by the odds. In the National league five teams seem to have a chance—New York, St.

Paul, Chicago, Pittsburgh, St.

Louis. In the American league

the Yanks' main opposition is likely to come from Detroit, Washington and Cleveland.

Those who play hunches already have deserted the Yanks. Lady luck seems to have done likewise.

At Buffalo, who led the Yanks last year with 20 victories, the club holds a flatly says that he gets $16,000 he'll stay out of baseball. Joe DiMaggio, the am's sparkling left fielder, is returning from an operation for the removal of his tonsils and adenoids. He'll be out two weeks or more. Lou Gehrig, the team's workhorse, has a mysterious ailment in his left hand. He hasn't played in two days and his long line of 1808 consecutive games is in danger. Has the worm turned in the Yanks at last?

The Cardinals have more "ifs" than the Yanks. They're dangerous but decidedly a gamble.

He solid team seems to be the Yanks. They have improved more than expected, and have a team that for the National league.

They have great pitching and a tight defense, and they won't beat themselves.

CUBS GEARED.

The Chicago Cubs, counting heavily on Rip Collins to supply the needed extra base power, seem ready to give the Giants the hottest battle. Cincinnati has assumed into a contender, and Pittsburgh, carrying power plus,

is a threat.

Late shifts in players have sent outfielder Jack Rothrock from Cincinnati to the Athletics. Infielder Earl Browne from Pittsburgh to the Phillies in a trade for Pitcher

Joe Bowman. Also the Yankees

today signed Tom Henrich, outfielder whom Judge Landis made a free agent.

Among promising rookies making their bids in the majors this season are Catcher Mickey Owen of the Cards, Second Baseman Bobby Doerr
of the Red Sox, First Baseman John McCarthy of the Giants, Pitcher Whitey Moore of the Reds and the sensation of them all, Strike-Out King Bob Feller of the Indians.
Feller, native of Iowa, is only 18 years old.

By GEORGE GALLUP.

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

NEW YORK, April 18.—Old King Baseball received a vote of confidence from democratic subjects all over the country today as the American Institute of Public Opinion announced results of a nationwide popularity poll among the sports.

In spite of his advanced age—baseball will be 98 this year according to the records—and despite rumors of his decline, King Baseball is still first in the hearts of his countrymen, the poll reveals.

Masculine voters give baseball 50 per cent more votes than they confer on the next most popular sport—football.

Even American women, who are not popularly supposed to understand baseball, say that it is their favorite spectacle of all the sports on the calendar.

Basketball ranks third, while boxing is fourth and horse-racing fifth.

The Institute asked representative voters in each state:

"What is your favorite sport
to watch?"

Totals for the country rank the five leading sports as follows:

THE VOTE OF MEN
Per Cent Preferring
To Watch

1. Baseball ..... 44%
2. Football ..... 28%
3. Basketball ..... 7%
4. Boxing ..... 5%
5. Horse-racing ..... 4%
All others ..... 12%

THE VOTE OF WOMEN.
Per Cent Preferring
To Watch

1. Baseball ..... 27%
2. Football ..... 13%
3. Basketball ..... 15%
4. Tennis ..... 9%
5. Horse-racing ..... 8%
All others ..... 18%

This is the first time the Institute has conducted a sports poll, and it is therefore not easy to compare today's vote with past sentiment.

WILL WATCH TREND.
Many observers believe that sports popularity moves in cycles, depending sometimes on the appearance of the occasional superstar who captures public imagination. They point to Babe Ruth in baseball, to Big Bill Tilden in tennis, and later to Helen Wills,

ADDISON SMITH TIES McDONALD

By CLINT DAVIS.

High scores featured the April medal shoot at the West End Gun Club yesterday. Five shooters finished with scores of 50x50.

These shooters were lead by Luther McDonald and Addison Smith, who finished with consecutive runs of 50 straight. Young McDonald carried his string on to a 66 straight score. These two shooters finished in the official tie for first-place medal and elected to shoot the tie off at a later date.

Dr. LeRoy Childs, Harry Har-kins and Buddy Jones all finished with scores of 50 each, but as they were best bird scores rather than consecutive runs they were eliminated from first-place tie.

In Class B, S. W. Fullerton continued his fine scoring by topping the class with 49x50. This score was made with a 28-gauge gun and was one of the best jobs of shooting done at the club in quite a while. C. L. Talley finished as runner-up to Hutchinson with the score of 48x50.

Bennett Hutchinson chalked up the best score of 46x50 to win the engraved medal in Class. This victory compensated for the hard luck which Hutchinson had in trying to make his first perfect score.

He was straight at station 8, but was penalized a lost bird by breaking it after it had passed over his head. He finished as runner-up to Hutchinson with the score of 45x50.

COMPLETE SCORES.
Luther McDonald, 50; Addison Smith, 50;
Dr. LeRoy Childs, 50; Harry Harkins, 50;
Buddy Jones, 50; S. W. Fullerton, 49;
Lyman Smith, 48; C. L. Talley, 47;
Clint Davis, 46; H. L. White, 46; Bennett Hutchinson, 46; W. D. Doak, 45; Dr.

O. T. Malone, 45; Clyde King, 45; Ralph

inson Jr., 3; C. L. Henderson, 2.

Age 45-54 53 24 23
Above 55 58 14 28

In spite of the fact that basketball probably had an attendance twice as great as did football last year, the vote for basketball is not exceptionally high. Women give the game a larger number of their votes than men do, however, and it has strong support in the middle west and east particularly.

Other sports among the first ten in today's poll are hockey, wrestling, tennis, golf and swimming in that order.

Cricket, from which baseball evolved, has hardly a vote today.
Soccer, one of the coparents of modern football, does better, ranking about sixteenth.

Lee Seeks Return With Lou Thesz

Matchmaker Frank Speer announced last night that at the request, in fact, demands, of Alabama Bill Lee, he was trying to communicate with Lou Thesz, of St.

Louis, relative to a return match between the pair at the Atlanta theater Friday night.

Thesz, sensational young Bulgarian, is the lad who put the skids under the former

All-American last week after Lee's winning streak had reached the amazing total of 51. Incidentally, it was Thesz's 42d straight win, but Lee violently charged one of his legs was out of the ring

when Referee Lanford awarded the young Bulgarian the deciding fall. And he proceeded to floor both his opponent and the referee after the bell. It was a great match.

EMPLOYER GUARDS IN WAGNER STATUTE OPPOSED BY LABOR

Roosevelt Advisers, Green and Lewis, Don't Want Changes Yet.

(Copyright, 1937, by United Press.)

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Trade union leaders and President Roosevelt's ablest labor advisers will urge him to resist growing demands that the Wagner-Connelly act be amended at this session of congress to provide safeguards for the nation's employers, it was learned tonight.

This stand became known on the eve of the opening of a series of conferences called by Secretary of Labor Perkins to discuss means of establishing industrial peace under the Wagner law. Twenty-five of 33 outstanding business and labor leaders invited by Miss Perkins on Tuesday have notified her that they will be present.

Too Early to Revise.
Those who counsel Mr. Roosevelt in the highly explosive labor situation have studied various proposals advanced by industrial organizations since the United States supreme court validated the Wagner law and have reached the conclusion that it is too early to consider revising the law.

Until the law has had what they described privately tonight as "a fair chance" to operate, representatives of these two groups will combat vigorously any attempt to revise it in favor of industry. On this stand, it was understood, President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, and John L. Lewis, head of the rival Committee for Industrial Organization, are agreed.

Act Not Perfect.
Neither Lewis nor Green believe the act is perfect. They are quarreling, for example, over a change proposed by Green. Under the law the three-man national labor board is permitted to designate either a craft or a plant union as the agent of collective bargaining after an election is held among the workers.

The federation is sponsoring an amendment which would compel the workers to be polled by craft instead of by plant. This would be a blow to Lewis' one-big-union drive and he will fight the amendment vigorously.

COMPANY UNIONS LEGAL, MANUFACTURERS TOLD.
NEW YORK, April 18.—(UP)—Company unions are legitimate under the Wagner labor relations act, the National Association of Manufacturers assured its members tonight.

"No legitimate organization confined to the plant or any freely chosen employee representation plan is outlawed," a statement said.

nounced today that he and Attorney General Cummings would address a series of mass meetings in 26 cities tomorrow night in behalf of the Roosevelt court bill. The speeches will be carried over a radio network.

DR. BUTLER OPPOSES ENLARGEMENT PLAN.
NEW YORK, April 18.—(UP)—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, today issued a statement opposing President Roosevelt's supreme court proposal.

"To select justices of the supreme court of the United States," he said, "because of their views or supposed views upon any question or class of questions which may come before them for decision is to destroy the supreme court of the United States as a court and to turn it into an additional and wholly unnecessary legislative body."

Time Table of Sian Coup

December 12.—Chiang Kai-shek seized in Shensi province by mutinous General Chang Hsueh-liang; Nanking government demands kidnappers' demands and suppression of mutiny; Japan, Germany and Russia "gravely concerned" over move that throws whole far eastern situation into confusion.

December 13.—Army of 30,000 Nanking government troops in southern Shensi begins march against Chang, in Sian; W. H. Donald, aide to Chiang Kai-shek, flies to negotiate with Rebels.

December 14.—Nanking starts mobilizing; Japan orders its China naval squadron to stand ready; Shanghai Stock Exchange opens late, closes hastily when government bonds start steep drop.

December 15.—Japan accuses Soviet Russia of supporting Chang in plot and consults Germany under "anti-Communist" compact; Russia charges Japan with instigating kidnapping to create chaos in China; Nanking war ministry reports its army 45 miles from Sian; Chang's troops outside of city bombed by 30 planes.

December 16.—Donald reports Chiang Kai-shek alive, scotching rumors of his murder; martial law ordered throughout China as five columns of troops close in on Sian to crush rebellion.

December 17.—Chinese Communist army reported racing loyal troops to Sian; Nanking fears murder of Chiang Kai-shek if Reds get there first; government officially abandons negotiations with Chang and sanctions civil war to suppress revolt, despite added jeopardy to its captured leader.

December 18.—Hope for release of Chiang Kai-shek renewed as Chang dispatches a letter from the generalissimo to Nanking; advance of troops upon Sian halted; communications with Kansu province (west of Shensi) cut and keenest anxiety is caused by the belief that the Communist armies there have amalgamated the kidnappers' troops; Japanese ambassador in Shanghai announces policy of "watchful waiting."

Troops Halted.
December 19.—Nanking calls halt to all troop movements and bombings until evening to give

Chang a chance to return his prisoner to the capital; Kwangsi province, under martial law, demands speedy action against Japanese; southern war chiefs believed supporting Rebel Chang.

December 20.—Nanking government prolongs truce to permit an extension of negotiations with Chang; Sian coup rescues Japan's cabinet from defeat, as it impresses people with desirability of its hitherto unpopular military policy.

December 21.—Nanking troops on march again as parleys continue; three towns bombed, but extensive fighting deemed unlikely until breakdown of negotiations.

December 22.—Kansu province joins Sian revolt; high officials slain in Lanchow as governor's troops pillage wide area; Mme. Chiang Kai-shek flies to Sian with T. V. Soong and Donald.

December 23.—Mme. Chiang Kai-shek begins personal negotiations with her husband's captors, after making dramatic landing outside of Sian's walls with long lines of hostile Rebel troops facing her.

December 24.—China extends truce to Christmas Day on request of Soong; Rebel Shensi troops converge on Sian as Communists occupy 10,000 square miles.

December 25.—Nanking delivers ultimatum to Chang, warning him truce will not be extended on any terms; Chang's troops destroy many bridges to retard Nanking forces.

Generalissimo Freed.
December 26.—Chiang Kai-shek freed, flies to Nanking and is carried through streets in tumultuous ovation; his first order is to withdraw government troops from all Shensi fronts. Chang Hsueh-liang also flies to Nanking, stays at home of T. V. Soong under heavy police guard.

December 30.—Chiang Kai-shek resigns twice in remorse for permitting himself to be captured at Sian, asks mercy for his captors; government rejects both resignations.

January 4.—General Chang, sentenced at secret trial to 10 years in prison and loss of civil rights for five years, is pardoned unofficially by council of state.

FORD AIDE CALLS FOR A FREE HAND

That Is Prerequisite for Higher Wages, Lower Prices—Cameron.

DETROIT, April 18.—(AP)—William J. Cameron, of the Ford Motor Company, said in a radio address tonight that higher wages and lower prices are "a practical accomplishment wherever enlightened management has a free hand."

"These two demands," he said, "always have been in heads-on collision. They are doomed—many believe—to continue in conflict until the end of time. But... enlightened industrial management... was the first to prove that these apparently conflicting forces are friends and that the objectives of both can be attained without injury to either."

Saying that "for centuries" the principle of "robbing Peter to pay Paul" was the only way to make desirable economic adjustments, Cameron said:

"To many it is still the approved way. We give one interest more by giving another less. Grant a higher wage and the customer must pay a higher price. So it goes on—the ancient game of robbing Peter to pay Paul, which presently compels you to rob Paul again to pay Peter."

He said that the "surest way" to obtain more employment and higher wages "is to lower prices."

shipments bound for Spain but will notify all governments responsible if any breaches (of the neutrality pact) occur," an informed source said.

Italy and Germany, roughly, will patrol the Spanish government coastline, France and Great Britain will check the insurgent coast.

Great Britain, in addition, will keep watch over the Basque coast on the Bay of Biscay.

NEUTRALITY CONFEREES WILL MEET TOMORROW.
WASHINGTON, April 18.—(UP)—Conferees will renew efforts Tuesday to break a senate and house deadlock over the scope of a proposed "cash and carry" trade policy for American business during war in pending legislation.

The controversy is delaying enactment of a permanent neutrality law to replace the temporary act which expires May 1. Difficulty in reaching a compromise has raised the possibility that the provisions involving unprecedented restrictions on general commerce may be scrapped entirely.

Bingham, Unlike Dawes, To Wear Knee Pants.
LONDON, April 18.—(UP)—United States Ambassador Robert W. Bingham, one of whose predecessors blustered "You can go plumb to hell!" when it was suggested that he wear kneepants to Buckingham Palace, disclosed tonight that he has ordered his black knickers for the coronation of King George VI.

Charles G. (Hell-and-Maria) Dawes refused to dress up "like some damned jackass" for the royal court, but Ambassador Bingham—with the gallantry of a Kentucky gentleman—doesn't mind it a bit. He will wear knickers when the King and Queen are crowned in Westminster Abbey May 12.

Old Jewelry Given To Defend Aimee

LOS ANGELES, April 18.—(AP) Money, rings and other jewelry were dropped into a huge bronze "melting pot" at Angelus Temple today to create a defense fund for Fester Aimee Semple McPherson in the $1,080,000 slander suit brought by Rheba Crawford Spilva.

Giles Knight, temple business manager, pleaded for cash, diamond rings, watches, chains, bracelets and even gold teeth and bridgework.

The slander suit is set for trial April 24. Meanwhile, a $150,000 slander suit brought by Roberta Semple, estranged daughter of Mrs. McPherson, against Will-Edd Andrews, the evangelist's lawyer, will be resumed tomorrow.

least they could do was to allow us to see what we could do to influence mutineers. The government, through newspapers, insisted that T. V. was going in a purely private capacity.

Persuaded to Remain.
On the morning of December 20 every nerve in my body was strained to have fighting suspended for another three days, and to leave with my brother, T. V., for Sian. At the last moment high officials came to the house and insisted that I should at least wait a little longer before going. The argument that restrained me was that I, by remaining in Nanking, could make certain that during his presence in Sian there would be no attack on the city.

Hence I finally compromised with them that if, at the end of three days, T. V. did not return to Nanking no more obstacles would be placed in the way of my flying to Sian. To top it all I received a wire from Han-chen telling me that if fighting were not stopped I was not to think of going to Sian, as he could not provide protection.

On the following morning I received two wires from T. V., one that the generalissimo was all right, and the other that Mr. Donald would leave for Nanking that day.

Mr. Donald, however, did not reach Nanking, but from Loyang he telephoned that he had made a forced landing alongside of the Yellow river and would arrive in Nanking Monday, December 21. I also had a wire from T. V. that he, too, would return to Nanking that day. Both arrived in different planes Monday afternoon, and after hearing their accounts of things at Sian, I insisted on returning with them the next morning.

It was interesting to me to hear from Mr. Donald that Han-chen had definite plans to fly out with the generalissimo in the event of an attack. I felt then that I understood the mentality of Han-chen, and that gave me more confidence, not only in my intuition but also in my belief that I could reason with him when I had the opportunity to talk with him. The situation at Sian was, I reflected, that Mr. Donald had laid the foundations, T. V. had built the walls, and it would be I who would have to put on the roof.

Thousands View Dress Rehearsal Of Regal Parade

LONDON, April 18.—(AP)—In spite of it being a cold, bleak, sunless Sunday morning, scores of thousands of Londoners lined the streets early today to witness a rehearsal of the procession in which King George VI and Queen Elizabeth will proceed to their coronation May 12.

The court and police authorities who will be responsible for this feature of the festivities obtained a vague idea of the crowds they will have to control on the real coronation day.

Beginning at 6:30 a. m. and carefully timed all the way, the procession, including the gilded coach of state, parambulated slowly over the coronation route to enable officials to determine exactly how long the real thing will take.

Londoners, who love a pageant, seized the only opportunity most of them will get to see what the coronation spectacle will be like. Left their beds early to gaze on the show, in spite of the absence of the King, Queen and other notables and many of the trappings of the great day.

They packed Trafalgar Square, stood 15 deep in Piccadilly Circus and 10 deep most of the rest of the route. They heard the bands, saw the famous gilded coach in which the King and Queen will ride and cheered the colorful military escort.

There was no sign of a scuffle in the room. The girl apparently walked in, police said, tossed her gray coat on a baby grand piano near the door, and laid a violin case over it.

She was struck immediately, police said, and her senseless body dragged across the room to the pile of gray drapes, under which she was found. The hammer, its head crusted with blood, appeared to have been tossed on the floor. Her black handbag contained

Friendly Counsel

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield: For a good many years I have been bookkeeper and general manager for a business in a small town. Recently the original owners disposed of it and I bought into the business with two men from another town. They came in and all went well. Hard work and plenty of it but I didn't mind for I was participating in the profits. One of the men moved his family here and since then it hasn't been so good. The wife is suspicious of him and seems to think that night work means monkey-business. As a matter of fact her husband has never complimented me on what I have done, has never expressed any appreciation of my long hours, much less said a personal word to me. But she snoops, she tells me how to run the works, she sends her daughter in to snoop and my friends tell me that she talks about me terribly. So my friends advise me to sell out and check out. I don't know what to do. I don't want to sacrifice my position in the business. I don't want to lose my investment and I don't know where I could land a job comparable to this one. I am all hot and bothered and need good advice. Please give it.

BUSINESS GIRL.

Answer: That's hard luck, if I ever heard it. But when pleasure and peace go out of a job the money profit can't pay one for sticking. So my advice to you is, try to sell your interest to one of the men and if neither will buy it try to dispose of it on the outside. If you fail to find a purchaser, let your investment remain where it is until such time as you can sell. In the meantime look for another position where you won't be humiliated and embarrassed by jealous, suspicious wife that doesn't know a good girl when she sees one.

Who says the business girls don't have it hard? They not only have to please the boss (which is sometimes in itself job enough), but they frequently have to please the boss's jealous, suspicious wife. Either please her or take the risk of having her patrol the office, spy, snoop and circulate scurrilous stories against which the working girl has no comeback. While there may be designing girls in business offices who use their jobs to further their personal purposes, girls who lure their employers into compromising relations, the majority of them are hard-working, self-respecting young women who are making their living, helping their poor relatives and trying to provide for their future. They have too much on the ball of the pay envelope to hazard it by indulging in monkey-business with the boss, even if he so minded. If the wife can't differentiate between one of this sort and the siren, then it is too bad for the good girl in question. She has no alternative but to find other employment though the change entails a sacrifice.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Dear Miss Chatfield: When I have a date with a certain girl her sister or her mother sits with us during the entire date. If I gripe about it she says she doesn't see why I mind since she likes to have them around. How can I get rid of them? JACK.

Answer: Jack, the brutal truth is that you haven't the magic to draw that girl away from her chaperons. You may be sure that when a girl falls for you she will be as anxious for the private date as you are. When a member of the family sticks to you like Dick's hatband it is by prearrangement with the girl herself, and so long as she takes up the cudgel for the chaperons you may count on their being present when you arrive at on their being present to say good-night.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Your soul is fastened to this earth
By the beauty of a song—
The song has a gentle rhythm,
Soft as a summer breeze—
Soothing, healing, lovely
Because of the joy it knows.
Your life like a bubbling spring
Is calm, cool, refreshing
But your heart like a stricken bird.
Is wounded, bleeding, hurt—
So much sorrow out of beauty...
So much beauty out of hurt...

DO YOU KNOW AS?

One has to pay a heavy toll,
To be a dear and sensitive soul?

PLEASANT HOMES

A Closet for a Room That Doesn't Have One.

A room without a closet is in almost as sad a state as a man without a country. And though modern architects are seeing to it that homes built now do not face this lack, there are still plenty of us who live in older places where the closet space, or lack of it, is a grave problem.

A Closet to Make.
Perhaps it's an extra bedroom that lacks a hideaway space. A good carpenter is called in. You direct him to build a cupboard that may look like a break-front bookcase but will be, in reality, a grand closet. The center part will be wide, with a door covered cupboard for shoes and such at the bottom. The top will be left open, but will be provided with rods to hold the hangers from your wardrobe trunk (which you use only once in a blue moon anyway). This open space when filled with clothes hung conveniently and neatly on the trunk hangers will be covered by a Venetian blind. When you want to open your closet, pull up the blind and there you are. Of course you will keep the shutters of the blind closed so that a minimum of dust will reach your clothes.

The Side Spaces.
The center portion of the closet is taken care of, you will achieve the "break-front" effect by having the carpenter add small niche-like shelves at either side of the larger cupboard. In these niches you may show off some pottery, a prized but empty perfume bottle, bowls of ivy and the like. Or these may serve as book shelves. The entire cupboard may be painted to match the woodwork of the room, the niches lined with colorful wallpaper. Or you may paint the interiors of the cupboards a solid color, perhaps a lovely turquoise with the remainder of the cupboard a soft, glowing ivory. This arrangement beats so-called wardrobes all hollow and is considerably less expensive. The general idea may be varied to meet individual needs—and junk to be closeted.

IS SYPHILIS CONQUERABLE?

Article Number One.

If syphilis were a venereal disease only, its prevention might well be left to education which influences conduct and morals. But it would be barbarous to shut our eyes and our ears to the truth that hundreds of thousands of innocent victims of syphilis might be saved, can be saved by a more enlightened attitude on the part of the public.

Education of the public about the nature and course of syphilis is necessary in order to correct many misconceptions that have grown out of the old conspiracy of silence and to enable conscientious syphilitic persons to take the necessary precautions against infecting others with whom they come into everyday contact. Education of the public about the nature and course of syphilis tends to insure more thorough treatment; and adequate treatment, whether by the old-fashioned method or by remedies recently introduced, certainly tends to shorten the period of infectiousness in any case.

Tuberculosis is yielding to public enlightenment about the nature and course of the disease. But the fight against tuberculosis has had to overcome merely ignorance. The fight against syphilis must overcome a more formidable obstacle, namely moral bigotry, the narrow virtue that would regard syphilis as the wages of sin, the sins of the father being visited upon the children, or a loathsome penalty of licentiousness, and that heedless of the fact that syphilis is a medical and sanitary problem without the slightest bearing on sexual morality or immorality in hundreds of thousands of cases.

In the preface of a forward-looking book published a generation ago for lay readers appeared this prophecy: "By an appeal to those who can read the newspapers intelligently and remember a little of their high school physiology, an immense body of interested citizens can be added to the forces of a modern campaign against the third great plague. For such an awakening of public opinion and such a movement for wider cooperation, the times are ready." ("The Third Great Plague," by John H. Stokes, A. B., M. D.)

I was inspired by that, and other utterances of a similar character, to appeal to newspaper readers to regard syphilis as a medical and sanitary problem and to cease thinking of it as the wages of sin or as a badge of immorality or as a punishment visited upon the second and third generation. I soon found that the prophecy was inaccurate. The times were not quite ready. Newspaper readers—those means everybody, of course—were not then deemed capable of understanding such things, I

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

Benjamin Franklin made out a list of virtues which he hoped to attain and many have found his list an inspiring challenge to higher and nobler living. An unknown author made out a list of seven deadly mistakes which he put alongside Franklin's virtues, hoping that the list of mistakes would serve as a constant warning. Here is his list of seven deadly mistakes:

1. That individual advancement can be made by crushing others.
2. Worrying about things which cannot be changed or corrected.
3. Insisting that a thing is impossible because we ourselves are unable to accomplish it.
4. Refusing to set aside trivial personal preferences in order that important co-operative benefits may be achieved.
5. Neglecting to develop mental refinement by the habit of cultural reading.
6. Attempting to compel other persons to believe and live as we do.
7. Failing to establish the habit of saving money.

Whilst this is a series of "don'ts," and a lot of people dislike "don'ts," I submit that the list is worthy of our consideration and that anyone who will honestly study the list and try to avoid these mistakes will be better for the effort.

After all, we may learn not only by our own mistakes, but by the testimony of others concerning their mistakes, and if a wise man tells us not to make the above mistakes, we may well pause to consider his advice.

I wish I knew the name of the man who made this list of seven deadly mistakes, but in the book which publishes the list there is no name given. If you know the author's name and will send it to me I will publish it as a postscript to my column some day.

PLAN FOR FURNITURE.

When the layout of a new home is made, the bedrooms should be arranged with special consideration as to privacy. They should open directly on a common hall, without passing through other rooms. Openings should be planned so as to provide for proper placing of beds and other furniture. Adequate ventilation is essential, and sunlight should be afforded at some time during the day.

learned. If, as I believe, this presages a more liberal view of the syphilis problem by the press and the public, then the "third great plague" of our times (tuberculosis is one, cancer another) can and will be batted out.

BEAUTY, ACCORDING TO YOU!

Enjoy a Relaxing, Luxuriant Bath in a Myriad of Bubbles.

By LILLIAN MAE.

Do you dash madly into your bath for a brief, business-like scrubbing, thus going through a ritual which has been handed down as a necessity, or have you learned that in a pleasantly warm, scented tub there may be a sweet relaxation from the day's hurries and worries, or a stimulation to go forth into these activities?

There are, after all, many lessons to be learned from infants who have not yet become conscious of the hustle and bustle of life. Put a baby into a tub, give him a floating toy or two, and he will play, paddle and thoroughly enjoy his bath which, without this amusement, would be irksome. After the same manner, if we would make our baths the delight that they may be, much pleasure and benefit may be derived from them.

We love to play in the ocean because of the waves and breakers. Of course we cannot have these in our homes, but I have found a grand substitute, in a bubble bath. This new preparation comes in a most attractive coral and black box containing crystals sealed in transparent envelopes—just enough in each for a bath.

Empty the contents of one package in your tub, turn on the hot water with all the force possible, and when the bubbles heap up, cool the water to the right temperature. Sink into the bubble-filled tub and RELAX. As the faint perfume rises to your nostrils and the billowy bubbles caress your body, you will discover a new experience and I believe you will agree with me that it is indeed a bath beautiful.

After the bubbles have stimulated your skin and made you ready to fight anybody's battles, or rather, to feel that the world is much too pleasant a place for fighting to be necessary, you may use your favorite soap—this preparation being soapless, in spite of its foam which, incidentally, will become less when it comes in contact with the soap—you will step out feeling refreshed and invigorated and, to quote a young friend of mine who uses this bubble bath, your skin will feel "all soft and fluffy."

The bubble bath is a foe to hard water, and it is an excellent rinse for the hair after a shampoo, leaving it soft and luxuriant, and the scalp feeling fresh and clean. You will find, too, that it sets easier.

Of course I don't advocate that you use bubble bath to clean your tub, but I will say that when the water is let out after a bath, there will be nary a disagreeable ring around the sides, even when the kiddies "go a-bathing."

And just another word. Men like this bubble bath just as much as do women.

If you wish to know the name of this product and where it may be purchased, call Lillian Mae at her office in The Constitution building. If you do not live in Atlanta, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your query.

Contract Bridge

By ELY CULBERTSON.
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

Herewith is presented another portion of Mr. Culbertson's latest work on contract, the "Gold Book of Bidding and Play," which is being reproduced in this column in daily installments.

DEFINITION OF THE TAKE-OUT DOUBLE.

A double is meant for a take-out:

1. Provided partner has made no bid, double, or re double; and provided the doubled bid is not more than one no trump or three of a suit.
2. The double must be made at the player's first opportunity.
3. A take-out double may be made by the player who has opened the bidding, provided partner has passed his opening bid and provided the opening bid was a suit-bid of one, not any no trump bid or any suit-bid of two or more.
4. A player may repeat a take-out double when his partner, released by an intervening bid, has failed to respond to his first take-out double, but when partner passes the first double for penalties it is construed as a response and any consequent double by either partner is for penalties.

TODAY'S HAND.

Certain alibis are heard over and over again at the bridge table. One of them is: "But, partner, I would have established a trick in the dummy by leading so and so." The alibi artist often loses sight of the fact that the trick established would be 10 per cent worthless to the declarer. Today's hand is an extreme example.

North, dealer.

♦ A K Q J	♦ 10	♦ 10 8 7 3 2	♦ 6 5
♣ A 6	♣ K 9	♣ A Q J 10 8 7 3 2	♣ 6 5

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 club	1 diamond	5 spades	Pass
4 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

South's three-spade bid was not a strong bid, but was of a pre-emptive nature. West opened his highest diamond. East, on with the ace and correctly laid down the heart king, following this with his remaining heart. West made the complete give-up play of shifting to a club. Dummy won, and declarer, holding 11 trumps in the combined hands, promptly banged down the spade ace. The king falling, the hand was spread.

Certainly it should have required no great imagination on West's part to have seen that a setting trick was impossible except in the trump suit itself. South's bidding clearly indicated a six or seven-card trump suit. If it were the latter, East could have no more than one trump. That one need not be the king, of course, but there was nothing to lose by continuing with a heart. Obviously, East could have ruffed with his spade king, setting the contract.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: What is the proper opening bid on the following:

♠ A Q 7 6 5 4 3 2 ♠ A 4 3 2 ♠ Q J 9 8 7

Answer: One club.

YOUR FIGURE, SIR

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

DON'T OVEREAT TO KEEP UP YOUR STRENGTH.

A man's argument is that he has to eat to keep up his strength. True... but you do not have to overeat for there is no strength in excess fat. In fact, statistics prove that you will be stronger and live longer if you maintain normal weight.

Of the several reasons why you may tend toward abnormal weight the most obvious is overeating. If you do not eat any more food than when you were normal weight, your activity is less than it was then. As you settle down in business there is a decrease in muscular activity, but none in appetite, and a steady weight gain is the result.

In eating to keep up your strength you must choose the protective foods rather than the fat-forming foods. Adequate protein (milk, eggs, meat and cheese) give you strength and build and repair tissue. Whether normal or reducing, your menu should contain the same amount of protein.

"Have you had your iron today?" is not a foolish question. A deficiency in iron means a lack of pep. Food iron is supplied in eggs, beef liver, spinach and other greens, molasses and whole grains. Your menu must include an egg, one green leafy vegetable, and whole-grain bread every day for iron.

Calcium and phosphorus, the other important minerals, are essential to nerve stability and strong bones and teeth. You obtain these minerals in milk, eggs, cheese, nuts and vegetables. Milk heads the list... and even strong men drink their milk.

If your daily menu supplies these minerals, you may be sure that you are getting all the others you need.

Vitamins, the newest contribution of science to the practice of eating for strength, are supplied largely in dairy products, eggs, fruit, fruit juices, vegetables, whole grains and vitamin concentrates.

You will notice that while the protective foods come in a varied list, the three most important—milk, eggs and green vegetables—are always included in your diet.

The protective foods are not the things that make you fat. If you will cut out desserts and use fruits, trim the fat from your meat and delete the gravy, guard against an excess of such fats as mayonnaise, cream and butter, and place a reasonable limit on bread and other starches, you can get to normal weight without dieting or affecting your health—except for the better.

In short, a reducing diet can be both satisfying and health-building. You will find the "man-size reducing menus" give the feeling of comfort in the stomach after each meal, and although they are

If overweight, sir, your problem is to eat for strength and pep, not for fat.

Hollywood Today

By SHEILAH GRAHAM.

HOLLYWOOD, April 18.—Elaine Barrie has a patented method of dealing with John Barrymore when he telephones her. If William Trammell, one of her current escorts, happens to be present, she puts him on the phone to relay her messages to the husband from whom she is separated. It is lucky for Marlene Dietrich that Herbert Marshall, her leading man in "Angel," is possessed of patience and good manners. Before each take, Marlene indulges in a heavy bout of face powdering, hair combing, and dress arranging that sometimes lasts as long as half an hour. And by the time the scene is shot, Marshall has forgotten his lines. Shirley Temple will be eight years old April 29. Now, there's a female who really has cause for rejoicing on her birthday.

George Raft has moved into Gary Cooper's dressing room at Paramount, and is hoping the change will influence the powers-that-be into giving him Gary's type of film role. . . . Carole Lombard is again sick in bed with a severe cold. If Miss Lombard were to stop dieting, she might gain the strength necessary to combat her frequent indispositions. . . . Film folk do not seem to care if they are called "murderers," "thieves" or "what-have-you." But call one of them "high-hat" and you really touch a sore spot. Martha Raye, recently accused of snubbing coworkers in her studio, was so indignant she sent around a petition for all Paramount employees to sign that she is still a regular girl.

A certain Dr. Charles Pincus is going to shatter the illusions of fans by telling a state dental convention which of the stars have artificial molars. Which, in our

Arrivals of Lovely Young Matrons Occasions Reunion of Their Group

By Sally Forth.

THIS week will be a grand and glorious one for a certain group of popular young Atlanta belles and young matrons who are former Atlanta, and are here for a few weeks' visit. Mrs. Robert Lorton, of Tulsa, Okla., the former Beverly Lorton, arrived last week to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold O. Rogers, at their home on Peachtree circle, and the other day Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ludwig came up from Miami. Mrs. Ludwig, the former Sara Hopkins, will spend about 10 days with her parents, the Lindsey Hopkins, at their Pace's Ferry road residence, and she and Beverly are having a joyous reunion with their friends.

Since early school days Beverly, Sara, Eloise Gresham, Dot Shivers, Nellie Freeman, Catherine Gray, Sally Jenkins, Marguerite Roddey and Virginia Murray have formed a congenial crowd, and they were all at Phi Pi's at the Seminary. Since some of their number have married and moved away, they are all together again for the first time in ages. Lots of informal social affairs this week will assemble this attractive group of young girls, and Friday Beverly will be hostess at a luncheon at the Piedmont Driving Club honoring five of her debutante friends, Dot Shivers, Sally Jenkins, Eloise Gresham, Nellie Freeman and Catherine Gray. Tuesday Virginia, Murray, now Mrs. Red Blandford, gives a luncheon for Sara Ludwig and Beverly Lorton, the affair to include a small group of the honor guests' friends.

Beverly and her husband, Bob Lorton, are building the most adorable home on Thirty-second place, in Tulsa, and it is to be a white-washed brick colonial bungalow. Beverly is so excited over moving in, and soon she will be unpacking her trunks and getting all settled within the lovely cream walls of her new abode.

In the living room will be a midnight blue rug, which will go beautifully with her handsome Chippendale furniture, and at the windows will hang flowered linen draperies. The rich colors in the draperies will blend with the furniture upholstery.

Beverly's and Bob's room will carry out a color scheme of turquoise blue and yellow, and dainty yellow lace curtains will adorn the windows. The guest room will be done in rose and delicate cream, while the colors for the other bedroom remain to be decided upon. A dining room, a breakfast room and kitchen complete the charming arrangement of the young Lortons' new Tulsa residence.

THIS is by no means a rumor dear readers, but is a positive fact that a socially prominent and popular couple announced their engagement last Saturday at a buffet supper given by a charming debutante, who resides in the Piedmont Park section. The bride-to-be has the Dresden-like beauty that makes her the cynosure of all eyes and possesses the social graces that add to her attractive personality. Her becoming evening gown of dark blue mousseline de sole embroidered in small rose flowers, enhanced her flower-like loveliness, and several purple orchids adorned her shoulder. On her shapely hand gleamed the magnificent diamond engagement ring, the stone being several carats in size and set in a graceful platinum setting.

Just as soon as the party guests heard the exciting and pleasing news the bride-elect and her fiancé called some of their intimate friends over the telephone to inform them of their betrothal. The winsome bride-elect has been an acknowledged belle ever since her debut several years ago, and has received a great deal of attention. The bride-elect, a Junior League, is the only daughter of her parents and has two well-known brothers. The groom-to-be is a successful young business man and is equally highly thought of by his friends. He is noted for his business acumen and judgment and has an engaging personality.

The announcement of the engagement takes place in the month of May. The couple will trod the orange blossom trail at a June ceremony, which bids fair to be the most brilliant of the weddings scheduled on the calendar of the favorite month of nearly all the brides. This little secret in Sally Forth's column is not disclosing any secret, because the announcement of the engagement was the topic of conversation among Atlanta socialites yesterday, and the betrothed couple received congratulations and felicitations without number.

IN addition to the many beautiful gifts of silver, chinaware, crystal and home furnishings which Frances Butters and her fiancé, Wright Paulk, have received, there are two presents which stand out. One is the brand-new car which has been given by the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Butters. The other is the handsome antique silver coffee urn given them by Mrs. James J. Goodrum. It is fashioned in an English pattern of the 1790 era, and is featured by a coat of arms. The exquisite ivory handles further add to its antiquity and beauty. It will be one of the handsome ornaments in their new home when they set up housekeeping in Memphis.

Guests attending the beautiful trousseau-tea given Friday by Mrs. Butters for her daughter were entranced by the exquisite array of costumes which the young bride-elect has included in her bridal wardrobe. Some of her undergarments are trimmed in exquisite Brussels lace which is being with deep sentiment. The lace was a skirt which the bride-elect's maternal grandmother bought in Brussels and its exquisite beauty has been retained during the years.

To Present Comedy.

The North Fulton Dramatic Club, directed by Miss Pauline Baker, will present the comedy, "Pigs," on Thursday evening in the school auditorium at 8 o'clock. Tickets are now on sale. The comedy will be used for the school annual and the library.

Miss Horsch Weds George M. Hooten Jr. In Jacksonville, Fla.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., April 18. The marriage of Miss Evelyn Horsch and George Milner Hooten Jr. took place in Jacksonville this morning at 9:30 o'clock at the Union Congregational church, with Rev. Everett B. Leshner, pastor, officiating, and with members of the immediate families and a few close friends in attendance.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, William G. Windress, of Detroit, Mich., and Daytona, Fla., and the groom was attended by John Carpenter Jr. as best man. Mr. and Mrs. Hooten left for a motor trip to points of interest in North Carolina, upon their return to Jacksonville to reside in Avondale.

Mrs. Hooten is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Fred Allen Horsch, of Detroit. She is the niece and ward of William G. Windress, of Detroit and Daytona, and has made her home with Mr. and Mrs. Windress since childhood. Mrs. Edgar Eicher and Mrs. George Pipert, of Hamilton, Ohio, are her aunts.

Since graduation from the Andrew Jackson High school she has been active in the Little Theater Guild, appearing in several productions.

Mr. Hooten is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. George Milner Hooten, of Jacksonville. Mrs. E. L. Bradley and Miss Ida Milner Hooten are his sisters. His maternal grandparents were the late Robert F. and Ida Jones Milner, pioneer residents of Newnan, connected for many years with the business, religious and cultural life of west Georgia. ## My Day

By ELEANOR ROOSEVELT.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Friday.—We had tea yesterday afternoon with my friend Mrs. Huntington. The only other guests were Mayor and Mrs. Maybank, Miss Pinckney, Mrs. Camman and Dr. Canby. It was a nice leisurely tea, served in an exquisite old china tea set. At intervals everyone went to look at the changing light in the garden.

Charleston is a leisurely place and it was seriously suggested that I remain over for a few days to see the vine at the back of the house in full bloom. It would be a lovely sight, but I receive the Children of the Revolution next Monday in Washington.

It was cloudy in the evening and had rained during the night, but this morning brilliant sunshine greeted us again. Mrs. Huntington came for us and we have visited houses and gardens to our heart's content all morning. I have never seen a greater wealth of carved woodwork, panelling and more beautiful mantelpieces.

The houses which have been restored seem on the whole to have been done with extraordinary taste and feeling. The gardens, with their high walls and careful planting, give one a sense of complete privacy. One gentleman pointed out an interesting fact. As we looked back from one corner of his garden we seemed to get a vista of an endless number of treetops going into the distance. You get a sense of infinite space, even in small gardens.

We ended up our morning by taking a look at Catfish Row, which, they tell me, was originally called Cabbage Row. We also paid a rather hurried visit to the Heywood House. Now we are off in a few minutes to lunch with an old friend, Mrs. Victor Morawetz, and this afternoon we will visit St. Phillips and St. Michael's churches and the city hall, where they have a museum and some historic portraits. After this, we are to have tea with the Mayor and Mrs. Maybank.

There seem to be an endless number of trips, so that we are sorry to leave early tomorrow morning. It will be a long run tomorrow for we have to be in Washington by noon on Sunday.

I am taking back with me a most interesting book called, "A Carolina Rice Plantation of the Fifties." It contains some lovely reproductions of water colors by Alice R. Huger Smith. The last story of life as it was lived in the old plantation days, is written in combination, apparently by Herbert Ravenel Sass and D. E. Huger Smith.

People have been endlessly kind and have invited us to do so many things that I wish I could forget there was such a thing as work. Even on vacation, however, we have devoted our evenings to doing the mail and such other pieces of work as we have brought with us. I am not going back with a clean slate but I have done a few things.

Sometime this summer I must spend a few days in the kitchen, for I've been given "Two Hundred Years of Charleston Cooking," a superlative cook book. The urge to try some of these delicious sounding dishes is going to be more than I can withstand.

WATCHMAN HELD AS BRONX FIREBUG

Police assert arrest ends 2-year arson terror costing ten lives.

NEW YORK, April 18.—(P)—A 47-year-old watchman who "always wanted to be a fireman" was under arrest tonight as police and fire officials asserted their search for the "firebug" who caused a two-year siege of terror through the Bronx was at an end.

Deputy Police Inspector O'Connor said the prisoner, George Stanley Preston, had admitted starting several fires to "relieve my headache."

"There is no doubt but that Preston is the firebug we have been looking for," O'Connor said after the watchman had been booked on an arson charge. He said the 200 special officers detailed to patrol tenement entrances and hallways after 10 persons died in mysterious fires would be returned to regular duty.

Tent Cities Spring Up In Platinum Stampede

BETHEL, Alaska, April 18.—(P)—Little tent cities today dotted the shores of Kuskokwim bay where stampedees flocked by airplanes to search for fortunes in placer gold and platinum.

The platinum rush centered on Goodnews bay, where deposits were found on a narrow strip of beach, while Eek river and Togiak bay drew the gold hunters. The magic words—"new strikes"—brought veteran miners and green hands to the tent towns.

How extensive the rush to Kuskokwim bay becomes will depend largely on discoveries made this spring and summer.

ORPHAN GIRLS TELL SAGA OF DORMITORY

Two Reveal Flight From Home To Escape 'Old Creepy.'

POTOMAC, Conn., April 18.—(P)—Two girl inmates charged before a legislative investigating committee today that they fled the Windham County Home for Children April 9 to escape the "unfathomable" attentions of Philip J. Provandine (Old Creepy), the superintendent.

After hearing the stories of dark-eyed Leah Contois, 15, and Lena Vitiaz, 17, at an extraordinary session in the county home, State Senator Laramie said:

"I was shocked by what I heard."

The girls accused head of the home, now held under $1,000 bail on charges of indecent assault, of attempting to fondle them, and of slipping into girls' dormitory late at night and turning a flashlight on the thinly clad forms.

The two inmates also alleged that Provandine lay on top of the sheets covering their beds, in the hot summer months, and said he used to creep up behind them, "pinching" them while they were at work in the kitchen and laundry.

QUARTER-BILLION BUDGET CUT HINTED

Roosevelt Plans $100,000,000 Relief Slash, Economies, Says Report.

NEW YORK, April 18.—(P)—The New York Times said tonight, in a special dispatch from Washington, that it was "freely reported" President Roosevelt will propose a reduction of $250,000,000 in his forthcoming message to congress on estimates for relief, expenditures and budget needs for the next fiscal year.

The dispatch said the President proposed to cut relief expenditures by $100,000,000, and to save the other $150,000,000 through new economies in the operation of various government departments.

Moreover, the Times said, he is expected to say that he hopes to provide the country with "a layman's balance of the budget" in 1939, a postponement of a year of his prediction made to congress last January.

On that occasion, said the Times, when the President presented the brightest picture of federal finances since the start of the depression, he was counting on revenues from income taxes and other sources of about $500,000,000 more than recent estimates indicate will be possible.

The Times said that, faced with actual income of $500,000,000 below expectations and a consequent rise in the deficit of that amount, the President, it was understood, set about finding ways to meet the problem at least in part, without resort to new taxes at this time.

FOUR ATLANTANS HURT IN TRUCK-AUTO CRASH

Four Atlantans were injured, one seriously, when a truck and an automobile collided last night on Route No. 3, two miles from Cartersville.

Occupants of the automobile were listed at Lowry hospital as Lorine Evans, of a Crew street address; Morlan Robertson, of a Grant street address, and Earl Davis, of a Main street address. All suffered cuts of the head and bruises.

The most severely injured was a woman listed at the hospital only as "Irene." The truck was driven by Elmer Head, 23, of College Park.

MINE WORKER IS HELD IN OFFICE FIRE DEATH

GAFFNEY, S. C., April 18.—(P)—Fire destroyed the office building of the Southern Gold Mine at Smyrna, near here, early today, and Frank Gibson, 55, of Ontario, Canada, was burned to death.

Gibson, a stockholder, was visiting the mine. He had planned to return home today.

Sheriff Bryant said tonight he was holding Jim Phillips, about 30, a mine worker, for questioning. No charges were placed against Phillips, who, the sheriff said, was the last person seen with Gibson.

YOUTH KILLED, 13 HURT IN CCC TRUCK CRASH

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., April 18.—(P)—Elmer Short, 20, Mt. Ida, Ark., was killed and 13 others injured last night when a Hollis CCC camp truck went over an embankment about 30 miles north of here.

Superintendent Jelly, of the Hollis camp, said the youths were en route to a dance. Kelly said he was behind the truck and saw the accident, explaining the truck failed to negotiate a curve.

DISCARDED SKELETON SOLVES BONE MYSTERY

MISSOURI VALLEY, Iowa, April 18.—(P)—The mystery of Missouri Valley's "bag of bones" was dissipated tonight when Sheriff Cross announced "the bones were nothing but those of a cadaver."

Cross said the gunnysack filled with the bones of the left side of a man, found in a dump here yesterday by three school children, were brought here two years ago by Eugene D. Foss, former student of osteopathy at Kirksville, Mo.

Fasting Mountaineer Waits Lord's Command

STOOPING OAK, Tenn., April 18.—(P)—Reduced to 109 pounds, Jackson Whitlow observed today the 40th day of a self-imposed fast which he said will be broken only "when the Lord tells me to quit."

The farmer-trapper, 45, said he received a "call" to fast through a study of religious songs. "It is the Lord's will," he said.

Whitlow normally weighs 136 pounds. He said he alleviated dryness of his throat by use of a vinegar solution.

INSTALLMENT XXXIV.

"Bobbie will come out to see us too, when he gets his long summer holiday," he told her, "and the others he will spend with Henry."

"He'll like that," Effie had been forced to admit. "Bobbie likes Henry."

But it still seemed a violent uprooting, and her heart shrank from the thought of tomorrow.

Heather and Bruce were to be married very early at a registrar's and then they would go straight down to Southampton and away to the other side of the world.

The sight of the landing with its beautiful carpets and wide staircase comforted her a little; it was so much more luxurious than Tangle's—dear Tangle's. She winked a tear determinedly away before she slowly descended the stairs.

Henry Mathews met her in the hall. "Hullo, youngsters," he said cheerily, and put a hand on her shoulder. "All ready for tomorrow's excitement?" And then as he saw her lip quiver he said, "I've got a surprise for you—come and I'll show you."

"What is it?" he asked miserably, and he answered, "What do you want most in the world?"

"For Heather to stay with us," she said quickly.

His smile faded, and for a moment he looked as if something were hurting him badly, though he answered almost at once, "Well—I mean after that, of course! What would be the next best thing?"

"To have a pony of my own," Effie said dolefully, and then, "But..."

"It's waiting in the stables," he declared. "It's a dapple—come along."

She was all smiles as she went with him hanging onto his arm and babbling away in his excitement. "Oh you are a darling. What shall we call it? Oh, Henry, there can't be anyone so wonderful as you in all the world!"

From one of the sitting rooms, which had been given over entirely to her use for packing and sorting out her things, Heather heard the little conversation, and paused for a moment to listen.

How wonderful Henry was, she thought—always cheery and ready to shoulder other people's troubles, and to devise ways and means of dispelling them. There were tears in her eyes as she thought of the window she saw his broad figure with Effie clinging to his arm, disappear toward the stables.

It was Henry who had solved all her own problems, taking her in hand as if she were his daughter instead of the woman she knew and loved. She thought of the night a week after Caesar had died, when driven by her own unhappiness she had come here to see him and had told him the whole story of her love for Bruce, and of all the mistakes she felt she had made in spite of her anxiety to do what was best for everyone.

He had listened in absolute silence, with no sign of emotion, until she had finished, and then he had said, very simply: "This isn't news to me, my dear. I'm a short-sighted man in many ways but when I'm fond of anyone, I can see all there is to see. I always felt that Logan—care more for you than he did for that poor child Vilette, but I wasn't so sure about you, perhaps because I didn't want to be." He cleared his throat loudly. "Well, now we must just sort ourselves out, that's all, and see what's the best thing to do," he said in a businesslike way.

She had looked at him unhappily.

"You must think I've behaved very badly—stupidly. But he had silenced her quickly.

"Whatever you do is right for me," he said. "I admire you more than any other woman—or man either—I've ever met." And then for an instant his voice had faltered as he added, "If you're going to be happy, that's all that matters. You've had more than your share of trouble, God knows."

But he had not allowed much sentiment to creep into their conversation; he had talked about the future, about the family, and had made the generous suggestion that they should all come to stay with him as Tangle was to be sold.

"If... things had gone as I... thought they would," he said, "I should have had you all, for the rest of my life, so don't you think I might be allowed to have some of you just for a few weeks?" He had put his foot firmly down on Heather's suggestion that she and Bruce should take Effie to South Africa with them.

"And spoil your honeymoon?" he demanded. "Nonsense—let her stay with me and Old Priddy, and they can go out to you, in the spring. I may even bring them myself; it's years since I had a real holiday."

He hadn't spoken of his own bitter disappointment, and when she tried to say something to express her deep affection for him and her gratitude, he said:

"I once thought you might have been my wife, my dear, but I can see now it's better as it is, and... I shall think of you as a daughter—a loved daughter—if I may."

She had not been able to answer Heather opened Bruce's letter. She had not seen him for the last two days, but each night he had rung up, and each night he asked the same questions: "Do you love me, Heather? Are you happy?" It was quite a short letter:

"My darling, "I found this verse today, when I was packing up the last of my belongings. You gave it to me years ago before I went to South Africa. I wonder if you will remember it. I am sending it because it can tell you so much better than any words of mine what I feel about tomorrow."

"Yours only and for ever, "BRUCE."

The enclosed verse was written in Heather's own writing on a slip of paper which had grown thin and faded with the years, but she remembered it well enough: "Has the day been long, my dear? Well, the day is over... Close the door, shut out the world, This is my heaven, and yours."

Heather touched the little verse with her lips, and when she raised her eyes again the shadows had gone, leaving in their place only a great peace and a wonderful happiness.

The day had been long indeed, for it had stretched through many years, but it was over now.

When Heather awoke the following morning, the sun shone with such dazzling glory that it seemed impossible to believe it could be November.

Polar bears often take free rides on icebergs, or on pieces of ice not high enough to class as bergs. It is their custom to get off and swim ashore, or to run across pack-ice, before they have gone very far. Now and then, however, they drift out to sea and are afraid to leave their floating ice-rafts. Sometimes they travel hundreds of miles, as far as from Greenland to Iceland—or even farther, from Greenland down to Labrador.

TARZAN'S QUEST No. 103

For a long time Jane lay quietly across the shoulder of her captor. Then she began to emerge from the strange hypnotic influence which had deadened her feelings and drawn her into the clutches of this savage. Now the horror of her situation dawned on her.

She must do something—but what? From the ease with which the man carried her, she knew his strength was supernatural—beyond anything she could pit against him. Where was he taking her—to what appalling doom? If only she could speak to him!

Well, she might try. "Who are you?" she asked in English. Her captor grunted, then mumbled in a Bantu dialect with which she was familiar, "I do not understand." Jane was elated. At least she could converse with him and try to discover his purpose.

"If you keep me or harm me, my people will come and destroy your village," she threatened; "they will kill many of you." The man growled: "Your people will not come. No one comes to the village of the Kavuru. But if they come, they will be killed!"

CIVIL WAR THREAT IS REPORTED EASED BY CAROL'S MAGDA

King's Mistress Swings Government Contracts To Block Friends of Nicholas.

VIENNA, Monday, April 19.—(UP)—Red-haired Mme. Magda Lupescu, sweetheart of Rumania's King Carol, was credited by border dispatches today with ending danger of civil war over Prince Nicholas' expulsion from the royal family.

Reports said the pretty Jewess effected a truce with the most powerful leaders of Rumania's Fascist Iron Guard, who had been demanding that King Carol send her from the country.

She achieved success, it was said, by using the enormous fortune amassed during her years as King Carol's mistress. She reportedly swung government contracts almost at will to become chief financier of an Iron Guard faction, in which she placed her own agents.

Former Prince Nicholas, now plain Nicholas Brana, remained at his country home at Snagov. The government appeared to control the situation completely. Nicholas asked the government to publish this statement, written to Premier George Tatarascu:

"I have heard rumors to the effect that I am connected with certain political parties and manifestations. If these rumors continue, they may harm the interests of the country. I declare that I have not contacted any political group and protest against the above rumors. Please take whatever measures you think fit to put an end to them."

Mercy Death Law Urged by Pastor For Tortured Incurables, Idiots

Religious Fear, Based on Error of Interpretation, Blamed for General Opposition, Says Statement Seeking Legislation.

NEW YORK, April 18.—(UP) Congenital idiots, the hopelessly insane, and the incurable sick whose every breath is a torture, should be put to death, the Rev. Charles Francis Potter said tonight as he launched a campaign to legalize mercy-killing in the United States.

"We need an American society for the legalization of mercy-killing," said the founder and leader of the first humanist society of New York. "We ought to have courage to face reality."

Potter pointed out that Senator John H. C. St. John introduced a bill in the unicameral legislature of Nebraska to make it possible to kill the afflicted without being charged with murder.

"Taxpayers who, through ignorance, religious fear, or a mistaken sense of maudlin humanitarianism, permit incurables to be kept alive by the thousands for many years in state-supported institutions, deserve to pay the increasingly higher taxes and have no right to complain," he said.

Potter said these incurables are "a worry to relatives and a big expense to the state."

"We ought to have the moral courage," he said, "to put them out of the way. A little chloroform and it would all be over. Just think how much better that would be than permitting them to live and suffer through, no one knows how many, tortuous years."

Religion, Potter said he believed, is responsible for holding back legalization of mercy-killing.

"Neither mercy-killing nor suicide is expressly forbidden in the Bible," he explained, "but since the time of St. Augustine, in the fifth century, the church has followed his interpretation that the commandment, 'thou shalt not kill,' prohibits mercy-killing or suicide."

move. First move will be installation of a highway on Jefferson and Marion streets, as voted by the city council.

Many Civic Activities Motivated By Constitution Awards Program

Cobb Officials Credit Plan With Arousing Interest in Better Government.

By CHESSE ABERNATHY JR. MARIETTA, Ga., April 18.—Awards offered by The Atlanta Constitution for progressive county government were credited by Cobb officials here today as being responsible for a widespread civic revival in this community.

Charles M. Head, commissioner and chief executive of the county government, said, "interest in public affairs has never been at a higher peak, to my knowledge, since I have been keeping up with what's happening in the county."

Aided by Clubs. "Smyrna and Acworth civic clubs, the Power Sports Club, Chamber of Commerce, the Marietta Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs, the Marietta Woman's Club, the Cobb County Woman's Federation have all expressed a keen interest in aiding the county to win the first award yearly many projects have been started."

"Numerous prominent citizens of the county and of other organizations have spoken to me and civic spirit is getting warmer every day."

Chief among the projects being fostered is a county-wide malaria control campaign. Dr. J. E. Lester, health officer and leader of this phase of the county's program to win the first prize award, declared today, "Interest of the public in the $7,500 prize money has undoubtedly aided us greatly in putting over the organization of malaria control associations in several communities."

Supported by Women. "We have had the whole-hearted backing of the women of the county, the local newspapers and civic leaders."

Fight against soil erosion, the introducing of more purebred livestock and general improvement of rural living conditions is being fostered by L. R. Langley, county agent, and his agricultural committee, who discloses, "Our committee has found much interest already created by the wide publicity which The Constitution awards have been getting. We are hoping to set up a terracing program to prevent soil erosion and to buy more purebred pigs and Hereford bulls to improve our livestock."

To Improve School. E. C. Barr, head of Macland schools and member of the Kiwanis Club committee on the awards, today announced that preliminary work was to start in a few days on improvement of old buildings formerly used as a site for Seventh District A. & M. school. He said the renovation of these buildings will give Macland section a modern community center, a high school structure, a grammar school building and a vocational education building. Plans are also on foot to remodel an old building, formerly dining hall at the abandoned site, into a gymnasium.

Road building in the county is being handled by the commission personally. James V. Carmichael and Russell S. Grove, county attorneys, are acting as his aides. At least four principal roads are slated to be paved, including Dallas, Mableton-Atlanta, the new federal route and Powder Springs highway. The former two projects are in line to start before June 30, the commissioner said.

Disbursements Less. An unofficial report of the county's financial condition issued recently shows that disbursements of the commissioner's office have been about $10,000 less than in 1936 for the first quarter of this year.

Method of conducting the campaign in Cobb for the award is attracting almost every civic group.

Other projects and groups which are sponsoring them are: Kennesaw Mountain Memorial Park—Cobb County Historical Association and special committees of Marietta Kiwanis and Rotary clubs.

Better Schools—Cobb County Athletic Association, special Kiwanis committee, and county school officials.

Economies in Government—Advisory board of the county, including Commissioner Head, H. P. Carpenter, court clerk; and J. J. Danell, ordinary. Plans are being put into effect to make the convict camp, the almshouse and the county farm almost entirely self-sustaining.
